EPIC BATTLES ON SOVIET FRONT

POWERFUL new Russian attacks, with massed tank formations, in the area of Pereyaslavl, where the Red Army holds a bridgehead 50 miles south-west of Kiev, were reported last night by the military correspondent of the German News Agency.

Encirclement Threat

Duncan Hooper, Reuter's Staff Correspondent, cabling from Moscow, said: "Nearly 1,000,000 Germans are threatened by one of the most gigantic strategic operations in history as the Red Army's enveloping thrust within the Dnieper bend rapidly develops towards Znamenka and Krivoi-Rog."

He states that the end of the epic battle of Melitopol is in sight, and with it the opening of the second stage in the Battle of the Dnieper Bend.

Special Russian units are clearing the last quarter of the city still in German hands, Reuter's message added.

The final reduction of Melitopol, according to this Moscow correspondent, will spring the trap on Marshal von Manstein's divisions within the Dnieper bend by releasing big Soviet forces for a sweep round the southern part of the river to its mouth at Kherson.

Inside the bend the Russian wedge, firmly based on a front of between 30 and 40 miles, has now been driven to within 20 miles of Krivoi-rog. There is no semblance of any German line there. The Germans are fighting a series of hastily improvised actions from one fortified point to another. This dual battle will prove one of the most decisive since Stalingrad.

As the battle for Melitopol enters its final phase the Germans are launching two, three, and even four, counter-attacks every hour. No fewer than thirty, in battalion strength, were repulsed on Thursday, when twenty-one new blocks were cleared by Red Army assault squads. New Russian guns have been brought up to deal with the Panzer attacks.

The main battle has split into individual clashes, fought out to the last man on the stairs and upper floors of every house with bayonets, knives, hand grenades and even sappers' spades, Reuter's Correspondent states, and adds: "In one building yesterday 150 German dead were found."

The arrows indicate lines of the Russian advance in the Dnieper bend area.

MAJOR DISASTER

Only a succession of counter-blows more powerful than any Von Manstein has yet been able to achieve can stave off the present threat, which has the makings of a major disaster, Reuter's correspondent cables. One deprived of Krivoi-Rog, it is most unlikely that the Germans will be able to extricate, by the alternative tortuous rail route, more than a relatively small proportion of their troops within the Dnieper bend.

The Soviet communiqué said that north of Melitopol, Russian troops broke enemy resistance and captured several strongly-fortified strong points, including Karachekrak; that south and south-east of Kremenchug the offensive was continued and advances made in some sectors from 4 to 6 miles, while the town and railway station of Verkhne Dneprovsk (Dnepropetrovsk region) and over 50 other places, including three railway stations, were captured. South of Pereyaslavl, bridgeheads on the right bank of the Dnieper were improved, and "south of Rechitsa our troops, overcoming enemy resistance, continued to fight for the extension of their bridgehead on the right bank of the Dnieper. They occupied several strongly-fortified enemy strong points, including Vozok and Gorodok."

Russia as Greatest Post-war Power

Russia will be the greatest continental Power after the war, according to Mr. Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovakian Foreign Minister, who has arrived in New York.

Czechoslovakia and other small nations, "innocent victims of the war," should have priority at the peace settlements, he added.—(A.P.)

British Landing in Ægean

THE German News Agency yesterday reported a British landing on the island of Kalymnos, one of the Dodecanese Islands, about seven miles north of Cos.

The agency said that a British sabotage party landed with dynamite and explosives and was taken prisoner.—(Reuter.)

Victorious Was Engaged In Pacifie

THREE hitherto carefully guarded secrets about the close working arrangement between the British and United States Navies were disclosed last night in Washington. They are:—

1. The British aircraft-carrier, H.M.S. Victorious, "Lease Lent" with full personnel to the Americans when the United States Navy was short of carriers, has been leading a task force in the Pacific for six months;

2. Famous United States naval planes are now being used successfully by the British Fleet air arm—the Tarpon, a heavy torpedo-bomber, and the Corsair and Hellcast, two of the latest single-engine fighters;

3. A great many British Fleet air arm pilots, now being trained in the United States to use these new planes, are returning to Britain completely ready for operational duties.

The Commander of the Victorious, Captain L. M. Mackintosh, said his ship was the broadest ever to go through the locks of the Panama Canal. "We almost had to use a shoe-horn to get through," he said. Speaking of his experiences of Japanese air pilots, he stated: "I think the Japanese will be very sorry that they ever came in against America. The impression I got before leaving the Pacific was that the skill and quality of the air pilots in the Japanese Fleet had fallen off a great deal since the beginning of the war. I think the cream of them had been killed."

NEW OFFENSIVE

The British Military Mission, headed by Major-General Letheridge, arrived in Sydney yesterday from New Zealand. General Letheridge, reviewing the coming offensive against Japan, said: "When the time comes for Britain to turn her attention from knocking out Germany to knocking out Japan it may be discovered that we have a few nasty surprises that will give them something to think about."

Japanese forces, trapped at Satelberg, in the Finschafen area of New Guinea, are trying to break through to the coast, Reuter's Special Correspondent cables from Allied H.Q. in the Pacific. All their frontal attacks have been repulsed, he states, but, using infiltration tactics, they have captured the village of Katika.

Graham Barrow, Reuter's Special Correspondent at Chungking, says that three Japanese armies, now backed up by aircraft as well as recent reinforcements, continue to force their way through the wild mountain trails of Western Yunnan, in an attempt to surround the Chinese forces.

Derelict Houses Act Needs Amendment

The pulling down of derelict buildings, urged by several members at the Irish Tourist Association annual meeting this week, is almost impossible under the limited powers possessed by local authorities.

Mr. Michael Brennan, of the Roscommon County Council, the new chairman of the Association, told an Irish Times reporter that the Act giving local authorities power in this matter had remained almost a dead letter. A local Council could order the owner of a derelict building to have it pulled down, but if the owner refused the only action open to the Council was to purchase the site. This was very seldom possible, because the average owner tended to look for a price as high as if the site had been occupied by valuable buildings.

If he did not like the price offered by the Council he had a right of appeal to the courts. Naturally a Council did not want to involve the ratepayers in legal expenses, especially if at the end of the proceedings it found itself in possession of a site which it had little hope of reselling.

The only way to remove the derelict buildings, Mr. Brennan holds, is to give the Councils power to act without the necessity of purchasing the sites.

No N.S.P.C.C. Man to Witness Birching of Boys

The N.S.P.C.C. is not accepting District Justice Goff's invitation to be represented at the birching of four boys which he ordered on Thursday after they had been convicted of housebreaking or larcenies.

In imposing sentence he suggested that the flogging should be done in presence of an N.S.P.C.C. inspector. Announcing its decision in the matter the Central Executive Council of the Society in Eire issued a statement to the Press saying that it had decided that no such action should be taken by the Society's Inspector.

Federation to Prepare Hotels Plan

THE draft scheme for registration of hotels is to be prepared by the Hotelkeepers' Federation. This was announced by Mr. J. P. O'Brien, Head of the Irish Tourist Board, at a meeting with hotelkeepers, at which he explained the purpose of the scheme, the first part of which will be registration alone without grading.

It is expected that the register will be ready for next summer.

Registration will be obligatory on all hotels and boarding-houses, but a differentiation will be made between the seaside boarding-house that exists for the accommodation of tourists and the boarding-houses in towns which give permanent residence to workers. The former type probably will be classified as guest houses, while the latter type, though they may be technically within the terms of the Act, in practice will be left alone by the Tourist Board. The first part of the work of registration will be easy, because the I.T.A. for the last fifteen years has prepared each year its own register of hotels. This list last year numbered about 1,200, and for each hotel the prices charged for accommodation and meals were given.

BOARD'S POWERS

The difference between the new register and the I.T.A. list will be that the Board will have power to suspend or cancel a hotel's registration for exceeding its published charges, whereas the I.T.A. had no disciplinary powers.

A leading Dublin hotel-keeper, who was present at the meeting with Mr. O'Brien, said that those present seemed to welcome the scheme, most of them feeling that it was overdue, and that, if properly worked, it would confer great benefit on all good hotels. It would also, he said, help the Hotel-keepers' Federation, as it would tend to bring into that body the many hotels at present outside it. These would now realise the importance of belonging to a vocational body to represent their interests in discussions with the Tourist Board.

Arsenic Used in Dressing on Man's Chest

CRIMINAL proceedings have been started by the Attorney-General following the death of James Styles, labourer, of Clondalkin, who died at home on September 8th, with a dressing containing arsenic on his chest.

The inquest on his body was resumed by the Dublin County Coroner (Dr. J. P. Brennan) and a jury at Londonbridge Road Morgue yesterday. Mr. R. F. McLoughlin, S.C., announced the Attorney-General's decision to prosecute for manslaughter.

Mrs. Gertrude Styles said that her husband fell from a ladder six years ago, and the injuries received had always given him trouble since. Five months ago he started work again, but had to give it up. On August 26th he went to Hackestown, Co. Carlow. When he came back he had a white powder, which he made into a plaster with egg-white and laid on his chest. It remained there until he died. There was not much powder, and her husband used it all.

Professor M. H. O'Connor, Professor of Pathology, Royal College of Surgeons, who performed a post-mortem examination on Styles, said that he had received a report from the State Analyst which stated that there were about 300 milligrammes of arsenic (4.7 grains) in the dressing. The man's body had absorbed 50 milligrammes. This would have accelerated his death, because he was already debilitated by a malignant tumour. The tumor was sarcoma, more malignant than cancer. He could not say if the arsenic had entered the chest recently.

Mr. Roger Greene, solicitor, on behalf of Mr. Robert Harris, Ballykillane, Hacketstown, expressed sympathy with the relatives.

Turkey Time

EXCEPT on Christmas Day, turkey will not be served at catering establishments in Great Britain during the period December 22nd to December 30th, inclusive. Any part of a turkey remaining over after service on Christmas Day, however, may be served the next day.

This is the effect of a direction announced yesterday by the British Minister of Food.

Nephew Abducts 75 Year Old Aunt

Thomas O'Neill, Moolum, Kilmacow, was bound over for twelve months at Waterford yesterday for abducting his aunt, Miss Ellen Durney (75), Ullid, Kilmacow, to his own home some three-quarters of a mile away and detaining her there against her will.

The case was brought, it was claimed, more for Miss Durney's protection than for any other reason. She was a frail old woman, and was still afraid of O'Neill.

O'Neill's defence was that he took his aunt away as the house in which she was living alone was in bad repair.

The prosecution's suggestion was that O'Neill had intended forcing her to sign over her property to him, and that when O'Neill heard that she had already signed it over to an employee he let her go.

District Justice MacCabe, binding O'Neill over, described his actions as "most high-handed."

Milk Consumers' Strike Continues

Milk consumers in Bantry last night decided to offer milk vendors 2½d. per pint from now until May 1st, and 2d. from May to November, with a twice daily delivery. They continue to resist the vendors' demand for a higher price by refusing to buy locally.

Howth Ward of Dublin Borough

The Minister for Local Government has approved a scheme under which the former urban district of Howth shall be an additional separate ward of the county borough of Dublin under the title Beann Eadair ward. This makes the total number of wards in the borough 34.

Progress at Three-Power Talks

SUBSTANTIAL progress has already been made in the Three-Power talks, stated Reuter's Special Correspondent in a cable from Moscow last night.

The talks are proceeding in a most satisfactory manner, Reuter states. All the participants are working hard and long.

Mr. Cordell Hull looked fit at his Press conference yesterday. He is abstaining from all social engagements. "I wish to preserve my strength for this highly important work we have come here to do with our Russian and British friends," he added.

Mr. Hull was expected to see Marshal Stalin last night.

The official list, now published, of M. Molotov's principal assistants contains no surprises. The chosen men indicate once again, however, how much importance the Soviet Government attaches to these talks. The yinclude some of the very best me navailable, both on the political and military side.

Among them is Marshal Klim Voroshilov, life-long friend and collaborator of Stalin, and one of the architects of the Red Army, who has taken a prominent part in the highest military positions during the war. He has been a member of the Defence Committee from the bginning. He is also a member of the Politburo o long standing, and combines in the highest degree political insight with military expertness.

M. Maxim Litvinov, Vice-Commissar for Foreign Affairs, and M. Andrei Vishinsky, the former Soviet Public Prosecutor, and now a Deputy-Commissar for Foreign Affairs, are others.

Vishinsky will be moving on to Algiers to represent Russia on the so-called Mediterranean Committee.

Other delegates include M. Saksin, Chief of the Foreign Department of the Soviet Information Bureau, who took a prominent part in the Food Conerence at Hot Springs, and Major-General Grizlov.

General Grizlov, who was promoted to his present rank last November, shortly after the Stalingrad offensive began, is one of the brilliant younger men of the Red Army General Staff. He was decorated last May for successfully carrying out the instructions of the Government in the sphere of operational and organisational work of the Red Army.

All parties continue to be very pleased with the mutual understanding shown and the measure of agreement already reached.

M. Molotov is chairman at the talks. The Russians wanted each Foreign Secretary to preside in turn, but Mr. Cordell Hull and Mr. Eden insisted that M. Molotov should undertake his duty permanently.

NO RED TAPE

The three statesmen sit around a large table, with one or two senior officials and interpreters present. Other experts or Foreign Office staff members are called in as required. All want to keep formalism out of the talks as much as possible. No minutes, properly speaking, are kept, but one senior official from each party takes notes as the conversation proceeds.

It becomes increasingly clear that the parties are all out for business. The social side of the conference is certainly not in evidence.

Belief that news on what was taking place might be given out at the conclusion of the conference was expressed in the Soviet capital yesterday.

MISS UNA MORTISHED (centre) arrived at Dun Laoghaire last night from France. She was met by her mother (left) and sister (right). Miss Mortished, a daughter of Mr. R. J. P. Mortished, former Dublin trades union official, and now of the International Labour Office, had been working since 1939 with the United States Quaker Relief Mission. Some months ago she applied for a permit to return home, and once it was granted, she said, the journey, via Lisbon, caused her no difficulty. She was assisted by Mr. Sean Murphy, Irish representative in Vichy, and Mr. C. J. O'Donovan, Irish representative in Lisbon. The only other Irish person with whom she had been in touch was Miss May Elmes, who had been working with the Quaker Relief Mission in Perpignan, and who is now interned.

White Flour Possible Next Year

REPLYING in the Dail last night to the three days' debate on the agricultural estimate, Dr. James Ryan, Minister for Agriculture, said that in the coming year they might be able to have semi-white flour available for the people. According to some medical opinion, it was more healthy than wholemeal.

Dr. RYAN said that seed assemblers had asked for 390,000 barrels, and that was more than would be needed to meet next year's wheat programme if the farmers' own seed was good. Up to three days ago the assemblers had 110,000 barrels of very good wheat, and the millers had been asked to put aside very good lots in case the assemblers should need it.

Replying to the suggestion that agricultural wages should be £3 a week, Dr. Ryan asked why the fixation of wages should not be left to the Wages Board. He vigorously defended compulsory growing and the price of wheat, which he described as generous. "If we are going to have support for the food campaign," he said, "it cannot be qualified by saying that the farmers should get more money. Either the food scheme is supported or it is not. We must get enough food, and we must do everything necessary to get it. We have to keep in mind that the war may last for many years, and that is why we are keeping tillage at a minimum in order to conserve fertility."

HARVEST LABOUR

Commenting on labour recruitment for the Army, the Minister said that the provision of labour for the harvest was first of all the responsibility of the farmer. In the vicinity of Army camps labour had been provided, but it could not be promised in advance. The type of farming that was most suitable was mixed farming, which enabled steady employment all the year round and did not depend on casual labour.

In a statement on agricultural production, Dr. Ryan said that so long as output remained steady the flight from the land was, from one viewpoint, a good thing, because, if output was maintained by a smaller population, it meant a better income.

The trouble about wheat was that in places like the Midlands the farmers were not familiar with the crop, and in some instances even still did not know when to cut it.

WHITE FLOUR

"I hope," he said, "that in the coming year, when we get the wheat in under the new scheme, we may be able to extract some offals and make them available to the farmers for feeding. As well as that—and perhaps more important—we will have semi-white flour available for the people, and, according to certain medical opinion, more healthy than the wholemeal.

"And put a seven per cent. barley mixture into it," said Mr. J. M. DILLON (Ind.).

"We might do that, too," replied the MINISTER.

Dr. RYAN stated that he did not doubt at all that they would have a sufficiency of good wheat seed for next year.

POTATO CROP

Asked by Mr. DILLON if he had made any inquiry into black rot in the potato crop, the MINISTER said that the reports on the main crop were not available yet, but, so far, it was known it would be as good a crop as last year's.

He revealed that at one period the prospect of prohibiting the keeping of pigs and poultry was contemplated, having regard to the emergency food situation. There was little hope of increasing the pig or poultry populations until feeding was available, and there was no point in blaming the Pigs and Bacon Commission for the absence of them.

World News in Brief

Red Fleet Sinkings.—Since the war the Soviet Northern Fleet has sunk over 300 enemy transports and other vessels, totalling more than 1,500,000 tons, states Moscow Radio. Its air arm and A.-A. gunners have shot down 752 'planes.—(Reuter.)

Bacon for Britain.—Mr. J. C. Gardiner, Canadian Minister of Agriculture, is about to negotiate a new agreement for the delivery to Britain of 900,000,000 lbs. of bacon and ham over a two years' period, starting January 1st, 1944.

Many Miners Idle.—About 27,700 miners in Alabama and Kentucky did not report for work yesterday through failure to secure suitable contracts with the owners. A later message says 36,000 were absent from lal American coalfields.—(Reuter.)

Famous Swimmer.—Jabez Wolffe, who made 22 unsuccessful attempts to swim the English Channel, died at his home at Waterloo street, Hove, yesterday, aged 66. His nearest approach to success was on September 19, 1908, when he reached to within a quarter of a mile of the French coast in 14 hrs. 55 mins.

Transport for Wounded.—Seven "Storch" type aircraft have arrived at an airfield near Barcelona to transport the most seriously wounded Germans when the exchange of prisoners takes place on Tuesday. More than 1,000 men of the British Empire Forces are to be exchanged for German prisoners from the Middle East.

No Nobel Prizes.—The Swedish Government has again decided that Nobel Prizes, usually awarded annually for outstanding work in the interests of science, literature, and peace, shall not be given this year.—(Reuter.)

W.R.N.S. at Funeral.—A detachment of the Women's Royal Naval Service will march in the funeral procession of Admiral of the Fleet Sir Dudley Pound. This will be the first occasion on which the W.R.N.S. have taken part in an official funeral ceremony of this kind.

Chief of Combined Operations.—The War Office, London, announces that King George has approved the appointment of Brigadier R. E. Laycock, D.S.O., Royal Horse Guards, as Chief of Combined Operations, in succession to Admiral the Lord Louis Mounthatten, Supreme Commander, South-East Asia, with the acting rank of Major-General.

Labour Party Leader in Corporation

At the annual general meeting of Dublin Corporation Labour councillors held last night, Senator Dr. J. Hannigan was elected leader for the forthcoming year, on the motion of the Lord Mayor, Alderman Martin O'Sullivan, T.D. Mr. Wm. Norton, T.D., leader of the Parliamentary Labour Party, was present.

Allied H.Q. May Go to Italy

THE war has shifted so far from Algiers that the suggestion of moving Allied H.Q. from North Africa to Italy is very probably now being discussed, says Reuter.

Algiers, the original focus point for the invasion, and for long within easy range of the battle, is now some 600 miles distant from the front line, and its remoteness raised complications for the High Command which the progress of the Italian campaign now makes undesirable and unnecessary.

REGENTS RECEIVED BY HITLER

HERR HITLER received Prince Cyrill and M. Filov, the Bulgarian Regents, last Saturday, according to a Berlin announcement last night quoted by the German News Agency.

The general situation was discussed, the Agency said, adding that the following took part in the talks:—Herr von Ribbentrop, Field-Marshal von Keitel, Herr Hitler's Chief of Staff; General Alfred Jodl, Herr Himmler, Minister of the Interior; Martin Bormann, Herr Hitler's deputy; General Zeitzler, Chief of the General Staff; Major-General Schmundt, Hitler's Chief Army Adjutant; Herr Hewel and Herr Beckerle, German Minister in Sofia.

Cavan Players Suspended

Three members of the Cavan team were suspended and one intimated his resignation from the G.A.A. at a meeting of the G.A.A. Central Council held in camera last night at Croke House, Dublin.

When the Council met to consider the report of the referee on the rowdyism which occurred during the recent All-Ireland final, the Chairman, Mr. Seamus Gardiner, said the report was very serious and he thought it should be heard in secret.

At the conclusion of the meeting the Press were informed, in a supplied statement, that T. Reilly, captain of the Cavan team, had been suspended until October 10th, 1944; J. Stafford was suspended until October 10th, 1944, and T. P. O'Reilly was suspended for nine months from the date of the match. Bernard Culley intimated that he had resigned from the G.A.A., and he was declared ineligible for membership of the Association for ten years. All the men are members of the Cavan team.

Travelling Expenses for Committee Men

The text of the Agricultural (Amendment) Bill issued last night provides that payment of the travelling expenses ordinarily incurred shall be provided for members of County Committees of Agriculture as from June 30th of this year, provided that the member has to travel more than five miles from his residence to the meeting. In case of fraudulent claims followed by conviction in the courts the member will be disqualified from membership of the committee or membership of any body under the Local Government Acts.

The same qualifications shall apply to members of a County Committee of Agriculture as applies to membership of local bodies. For instance, a member cannot be a contractor to the Committee, but a member is entitled to benefit in the ordinary way from agricultural schemes administered through the committee. Committees which neglect to perform their duties may be dissolved by the Minister.

Donegal Murder Charge Reduced

When Edward Doherty (28), farmer's son, of Carrowmore, Co. Donegal, was brought before District Justice Burke, at a Special Court in Carndonagh yesterday, charged with the murder of John Lafferty (50), farmer, of Carrowcrow, Carndonagh, evidence was given of a row in a publichouse, in which the two men were involved. They were removed from the house, and John Lafferty was afterwards seen lying on the footpath unconscious.

The charge was reduced to manslaughter, and the accused man was returned for trial to the next Circuit Court in Letterkenny, on bail of £200, with two sureties of £100 each.

Mallow Man Buried in Trench

A middle-aged labourer Eugene Carey, of Sandfield, was digging in a trench, part of Mallow town drainage improvement scheme yesterday evening, when the trench caved in around him. He had been standing some feet below the level of the road and it took over an hour for other workers to dig him out from the clammy clay. He was dead when taken out. He had a large family.

Members' Allowances Tax

By way of amendment to a motion put down by deputies of the Farmers' Party—Deputies M. Donnellan and M. Cafferky—that the allowances of members of the Oireachtas should not be exempt from income tax, Deputy Sir John L. Esmonde will propose that a deduction for legitimate expenses should be made in assessing income of £250 in the case of deputies and £150 in the case of Senators.

British Hold Leros

Neutral watchers on the Turkish coast reported yesterday that "the British were still holding Leros, in face of repeated German air attacks and attempts to effect landings. New reinforcements were being constantly flown to the island, it was added.—(A.P.)

The Office of Price Administration in Washington last night "froze" all retail sales of jams, jellies, and preserves, preliminary to the start of rationing on October 31st.—Reuter

Army Masses for Attack in Italy

THE Fifth Army continues to push northward in Italy, in face of German counter-attacks.

The Eighth Army has occupied Baranello, 18 miles south-east of Isernia, after a grim battle, Cairo Radio stated last night.

According to Reuter, General Clark is massing his army for another battle, the Allied objective now being Venafro, bulwark of the new German defence line north of the Volturno River.

The Fifth Army has already captured three important positions less than 20 miles from Venafro. On the east bank of the Volturno, Allied troops now hold Alife and Piedimonte d'Alife, while on the opposite side they have seized Dragoni.

The new German defence line is being constructed north of the river's lower reaches, and runs from Mondragone, on the seashore, in a north-easterly direction to Venafro.

LULL COMING

While the work goes on German shock detachments are hitting at isolated sections of the Allied line with sharp counter-blows. The latest was near Cancello, on the seaward end of the Allied positions, and all were repulsed. Military observers expect a period of comparative lull during the next few days, broken only by German rear-guard actions.

After the Fifth Army mountain columns had driven the Germans from Alife, the Germans re-formed and smashed back at General Clark's spearheads. But the Allied troops stood firm, threw the Germans back and the town is now firmly in Allied hands.

With the capture of Alife and Piedmonte d'Alife, nestling at the foot of a 6,500 feet mountain pass, the Fifth Army is now well established on the Volturno's east bank.

On the Eighth Army front there has been no major clash since the capture of Petacciato. Algiers Radio, however, says the Eighth Army's right flank is engaged in "heavy fighting" for the possession of Baranello.

Big Allied Air Attacks in Italy and Balkans

THE biggest day's air operations over Italy and the Balkans since the battle of Salerno was reported yesterday in messages from Allied Headquarters.

Heavy raids were aimed at German strategic communications on a line starting 80 miles north of Rome and stretching across Italy and the Adriatic to Skoplje in Yugoslavia. A total of 16 German aircraft was destroyed—bombers and fighters—and one Allied 'plane was shot down.

Striking 55 miles north-west of Rome, Marauders scored direct hits on the important Acquapendente road bridge west of Orvieto. In a 15-minute dog-fight escorting fighters shot down six out of 15 German fighters which intercepted.

The west coast railway from Leghorn, one of the two main lines into Rome, was attacked by unescorted Mitchells, and Flying Fortresses hit a bridge and set fire to marshalling yards on the same railway at Santa di Albinia.

On the other Rome railway—the central line running down from Florence — unescorted Liberators bombed railway bridges at Orvieto, 70 miles north of the capital. Light and medium bombers attacked communication centres and gun positions around Cassino—45 miles above Naples—which had one of its biggest raids as relay bombing, started by R.A.F. Bostons at night, was taken up in daylight by Bostons and Mitchells.

Many targets were also attacked on the east coast of Italy.

Another heavy raid was made on Skoplje, important railway centre in south-eastern Yugoslavia. Six Junkers operating against the partisans were destroyed.—(Reuter.)

Raids on France, Germany and Britain

A British Air Ministry and American Headquarters in Europe report yesterday stated:—

"United States Air Force Marauders (B.26s.) escorted by R.A.F. Dominion and Allied Spitfires, attacked the Evreux-Fauville airfield this morning. No enemy aircraft was encountered by the Marauders and their escort, and all returned safely.

"Other Spitfire squadrons, which carried out supporting sweeps, destroyed eight enemy aircraft for a loss of one of ours."

In a report last night American Headquarters stated that in the attack on Evreux-Fauville airfield the Marauders left "a flaming hangar and numerous fires among other buildings. Bombs also hit runways, dispersal areas and parked enemy aircraft."

Evreux-Fauville airfield is 35 miles west of Paris.

Early yesterday a British official statement said that on Thursday night "Mosquitos of Bomber Command, without loss, attacked objectives in Western Germany.

The German communiqué said:—"Single British nuisance 'planes last night dropped some bombs at random in North-Western Germany.

"Fast German bombers last night penetrated to London and scored bomb hits on the selected target areas. According to final reports of the German air defences the enemy on Wednesday night lost 28, and not 18, aircraft in day and night attacks on German territory."

NIGHT RAID

Bombs were dropped on one London district and at four places in South-East and East England last night, says the P.A. There were a number of casualties in one district.

The raids followed the small scale pattern of previous nights. Only a few German 'planes flew inland, dropping flares. The "raiders passed" was sounded in London after a comparatively short time and some hours before midnight.

Admiral Sir R. Hall Dead

Admiral Sir Reginald Hall, known as "The Wizard of Whitehall," as head of the British Naval Intelligence during the last war, died in London last night, aged 73. It was Admiral Hall who was responsible for the capture of Von Rintelen, who was said to be Germany's master spy, in the United States, and it was the Admiral's false message that lured Von Spee's squadron to its destruction at the battle of the Falklands.

Von Rintelen, who was a Lieut.-Commander in the German Navy in 1915, was said to have organised sabotage at American ports and tried to stir up labour troubles in attempts to prevent shipment of munitions to the Allies. Travelling in a Dutch ship, under a Swiss name, he was captured by the British Navy off Ramsgate and handed over to the Americans. In later years Sir Reginald became a friend of his former foe, and in 1939 pleaded for him before an aliens' tribunal. Von Rintelen, however, was later interned.

BOOKS OF THE WEEK

New Fiction

Men of Albemarle. By Inglis Fletcher. Hutchinson. 10/6 net.

IN this excellent historical novel Mr. Inglis Fletcher not only brings to life an interesting and too-little-known period, but achieves the far more difficult task of placing a fast-moving and eventful period of pioneer history in relationship to its European background. While Queen Anne, Sarah Churchill and the hero of Blenheim were absorbed in the intrigues of Europe, Albemarle County, in America, was an uncharted land, its borders in dispute between the colonial Governors of Virginia and the Carolinas, its few adventurous European settlers facing the many problems of Indian uprisings, religious dissent, witchcraft trials, political unrest and all the natural menaces of a wild and unconquered territory. Mr. Fletcher has produced a novel rich and readable in the stuff of fiction, but has surpassed even that achievement in presenting a vivid and authentic historical document of colourful days, when England's American provinces were moving toward the foundations of democratic government.

Friday's Well. By Temple Lane. Talbot Press. 7/6 net.

Miss Temple Lane's new novel, "Friday's Well," is a pleasant adventurous story of Irish life. It is a pleasure to read a story about Ireland written by someone who is obviously on her home ground, and escapes the appalling inaccuracies so frequent in an outsider's efforts.

Bryan Connell, an attractive adventurer, arrives one night in the Prendergast house, introducing himself as an American airman forced down off the south coast of Ireland. He is sheltered for the night, and then finds a home with Angela Rawley, their aristocratic neighbour, who falls in love with him; Anna and Nuala Prendergast are already under his spell, but it is Anna only who finds out that he is a fraud. They all find themselves bound up in a series of dramatic events, which have happy as well as tragic consequences.

One is glad to see this book is published by the Talbot Press: too many Irish writers are forced to seek publication across the Channel.

Don Chicago. By C. E. Bechofer Roberts. Jarrolds. 6/- net.

This is one of the books that make one long for better format and a higher quality of paper, for it is most emphatically one to have and to hold. It is a gorgeous, rollicking and not too improbable tale, full of a never failing series of humorous situations, and yet not lacking in a kindly humanity.

Don Chicago, named after the prominent city which gave him birth, falls foul of a rival gang. They catch him at an awkward moment when he is cranking up his car, and somewhat pointedly propose to "bump him off." But Don is a wiser guy than most, and his eloquence so moves his would be assassins that the death sentence is commuted to exile for life in Europe. Despite their victim's pleas that "Europe ain't on the level" and "Europe's not in my class: it's lousy with tyranny and oppression," he has to go and chance his luck in a new world which, according to gangster ideas, still remains in a state of most primitive civilisation. Don lands in Southampton and proceeds to carry on with his gangster ideas. His linking up with "Ike" Murphy, a waif with film-formed ideals equal to Don's own, and their subsequent adventures, make a book that should make Wodehouse look to his laurels

Valiant Dust. By Margaret Mackprang Mackay. Hutchinson. 9/6 net.

The fabulous success of "Gone With the Wind" seems to have driven numbers of authoresses to the writing of long sagas about unconventional women, whose domestic upheavals fortunately coincide with some colourful historical event. This time the background is not the American Civil War, but the Boxer Siege in China, and Elspeth Campbell (the Scarlett O'Hara in this case) is a lady of marked propriety and squeamish virtue. Her husband—one Augur Maclaren—is as faithless as Rhett Butler, but considerably less attractive.

Mrs. Mackay's book, however, is cleverly contrived, and one's attention is frequently attracted by surprisingly apt or original turns of speech. It is these colourful tricks of style, rather than the characters themselves, that make "Valiant Dust" notable. It will be surprising if it is not seen on the screen within the next year.

The Shrine. By Michael Nugent. Dakers. 8/6 net.

A delicate situation is delicately handled in this novel. The village of Alterham is a shrine frequented by both Anglicans and Roman Catholics, who find there a religious centre of common devotion. Both parties contrive to exist in harmony, and the whole atmosphere is one of exemplary piety. The plot of this book centres round two of the Roman Catholic inhabitants, a married woman and a young journalist, whose love affair has reached the ultimate pitch. The whole neighbourhood is faced with a grave scandal. Fortunately, a priest of the Roman Church is equal to the situation, and the whole affair is ultimately settled in strict accordance with the highest traditions of both faiths. The beauty of the book lies in its exposition of sanctity and its close alliance with sanity.

Familiar Faces. By Mary Roberts Rinehart. Cassell. 10/6 net.

Mrs. Rinehart writes first-class commercial fiction. Her stories, which appear regularly in the better women's magazines, are outstanding in such company, but readers will find this collection of short stories somewhat lacking in distinction. All the stories in "Familiar Faces" show complete mastery of style and technique, and hold the interest throughout; but Mrs. Rinehart has a displeasing habit of serving up an old plot with a new top-dressing which cannot quite disguise the taste of yesterday's roast. Nevertheless, for those who have enjoyed her stories in magazines, or who want something better than average to read in a train, this book is worth reading —once.

Dance of the Years. By Margery Allingham. Michael Joseph. 10/6 net.

The publisher's note at the beginning of this volume tells us that it is a long novel compressed into a small book, but, indeed, the reader who reaches the end will be in no doubt as to its length.

Old Will Galantry, a country squire, marries at an advanced age a young gipsy girl, Sulie, and the effects of this curious union are felt through several generations. This idea is interesting enough; but the denouement is tedious and disappointing.

Anthology

Lend Me Your Ears. By Reyner Barton. Jarrolds. 6/- net.

As an anthology of quotations from Shakespeare this books takes a high place. The chosen passages are selected under the headings of Friendship, Love, Honour, Honesty, Courage and Cowardice, and so on, while the well-known lines are set out in alphabetical order in order to facilitate search.

Poet in the Shetlands

By Austin Clarke

Lucky Poet: A Self-Study in Literature and Political Ideas. The Autobiography of Hugh MacDiarmid. (C. M. Grieve.) Methuen. 21/- net.

A STRONG romantic impulse frequently impels poets and writers to abandon the displeasures of modern life and retire to a cottage in the wilds. The innate romanticism of this self-banishment usually disguises itself as an economic necessity, for a cottage, lost in the mountain mist, may cost only a shilling or two in weekly rent: solitude is a wily temptress. In my early twenties, I sought cottages in Connemara and on remote western islands; Padraic O'Conaire found me the ideal habitat half-way up a Wicklow mountain, and the bargain was pledged in a bottle of whiskey. But my enthusiasm always waned at the very last moment and I fled back to town. However, I have visited other writers who banished themselves to damp neuralgic lakeside, wind-swept Atlantic headlands or valleys full of foggy dew. In every case the result has been the same. These exaltés, beside themselves with solitude, have seized me by the lapel and talked incessantly, widly, brilliantly, all day and half the night for a week at a time. Yielding to the economic-romantic impulse, Hugh MacDiarmid, the leading poet of Scotland, retired, some years ago, to one of the Shetland Islands. Surrounded by manuscripts, newspaper cuttings and the interminable thoughts of loneliness, he has argued, talked and expostulated with imaginary visitors. This book is the result. It runs to more than four hundred packed pages, and is only the first instalment of a threatened trilogy.

Hugh MacDiarmid is the pseudonym of C. M. Grieve. This poet is of mixed Highland and Lowland race, and in his poetry has endeavoured to stimulate and even to blend the contrasting traditions of Scots and Gaelic literature. His work has caused much controversy, admiration and vehement enmity. Writing in Scots, he has drawn from every dialect and made a language of his own. Writing in English, he has recently produced several lengthy translations of Gaelic poetry, each of which is a tour de force. Add to this the fact that Hugh MacDiarmid is theoretically a revolutionary. I say "theoretically," for in this country revolutionary views have always implied jail, hunger strike, concentration camps, firing squads. Hugh MacDiarmid caused somewhat of a sensation by his famous "Hymn to Lenin," at a time when Communism was as awful as Socialism in the 'eighties. But the wheel has come full circle. Communism is not politically disreputable at the moment, and, in a shy note, Mr. MacDiarmid reveals the fact that at present he is engaged on war work.

Hugh MacDiarmid was born in the little Dumfriesshire town of Langholm, and was the son of a rural postman. As a youngster he had the run of a large public library, and read not wisely but too well. He has continued that early habit of omniverousness, and his present book is an extraordinary mass of quotations, a huge compilation of Wahrheit und Dichtung. Hugh MacDiarmid gives us only a few glimpses of the vigorous traditions among which he was brought up, and he mentions the Shetland Islands only to dismiss them. To whom, therefore, is this book addressed? The general reader, who is not prepared to read Scots poetry with the aid of a glossary, will not be interested in Mr. MacDiarmid's subtle definitions and metaphysical black knots. The frequenters of haberdashery libraries require in an autobiography plenty of picturesque detail, indiscreet, but decorous, anecdote, wistful descriptions of Viking islands in the manner of Neil Gunn. On the other hand, the serious literary reader and critic can hardly be expected to witness with patience the disorder of this poet's thoughts, the endless repetitions and recapitulations. Moreover, Mr. MacDiarmid insists on producing copious extracts from reviews of his work and, as it were, testimonials. Surely all this activity of scissors and paste is unnecessary. A poet must be judged only by his work; and to those who are interested in the poetry of Scotland Hugh MacDiarmid is the most vital poet since Burns. What more does he want?

What is the value of fantastic and frequently inaccurate claims? On page 14, for example, he states:—

> Europe and Asia can meet, and can only meet in complete accord, upon the common ground of the metaphysical and purely intellectual tradition, upon the basis of what is called in our terms sanatana dharma, though it is by no means to be understood that this "wisdom uncreate, the same now as it ever was, and the same to be for evermore." (St. Augustine) belongs to the Indian, European, or any other part of humanity exclusively. I believe that this is what sent my friends Yeats and AE, via Scandinavian literature (the course I myself have taken) to the Upanishads (whither I have followed them—if, indeed, I did not precede them there).

Mr. MacDiarmid was born in 1892, and most of us know that Yeats and AE, as young poets, were reading Sinnott's "Esoteric Buddhism" in the 'eighties. The passage I have quoted is an example of Hugh MacDiarmid's vagueness and hasty parenthetical method of writing.

Mr. Hugh MacDiarmid has enthusiastic admiration for some of our Irish literary playboys, and their antics seem to have excited his emulation. This, surely, is short-sighted. The main question, after all, is the fate of Scots poetry. Will it survive, and will the tradition which Mr. MacDiarmid has broadened and strengthened continue to develop? As a poetic medium, standard English has become thin and conventional in its effects. The work of Doughty, Joyce, Hugh MacDiarmid is an experiment in the medium of the language itself. The Irish literary revival has drawn its strength from a rich traditional speech and the vital prosodic forms which we have borrowed from Gaelic. Scotland has immense traditional resources, and so Hugh MacDiarmid and his fellow-writers can certainly call themselves lucky poets.

The Bright Hillside

By RHODA COGHILL

WITH a gull's beak I cry
And mount through strong resistance.
My wing-span beats the sky
Across the high distance,

Circling about your place,
Wheeling to cover your bed
With the curve of space
And the airs overhead:

To keep you, to enfold
Spirit in one dear frame:
But Life is not to hold,
Passing the way it came——

Life, that will all things leave
As now this body, dead——
Those who remain to grieve——
The world they habited:

On bush no berries green,
The lake waters unfinned,
And the bright hillside clean
Of any wind.

Irish Stories

Modern Irish Short Stories. Edited by Alan Steele and Joan Hancock. Penguin Books. 9d. net.

ALMOST all the notable names in Irish short-story writing are to be found on the contents list of this volume; and, in spite of the inevitable temptation to complain of omissions, it must be admitted that the editors have done their work well. Their principle, apparently, has been to select their authors first, and then, thus limited, to choose their stories. For such a short survey the procedure is a sound one. James Joyce is represented by "Two Gallants," from "Dubliners"; Mr. Frank O'Connor by the gloriously funny "Orpheus With His Lute"; Mr. Liam O'Flaherty by "The Tent," a typically strong piece of work; Mr. Sean O'Faolain by the longest story in the book, "The Bombshop"—one of his best essays in this genre. If there is to be an objection, it is that Lord Dunsany's "Jorkens" story has no peculiarly Irish flavour; but Miss Elizabeth Bowen's "The Cat Jumps," against which the same criticism might be levelled, could ill be spared for its nice combination of eerieness and satire. At any rate, nobody can suggest that this book is not worth the money.

Politics

Keep the Lamps Burning. By Dr. J. Van den Tempel. Robert Hale. 10/6 net.

THIS is a book of considerable importance, though of somewhat unequal interest. Dr. Van den Tempel is the Netherlands Minister for Social Affairs, and was formerly a distinguished trade union leader. His chapters on Nationalism, Sovereignty, and the Danger of Abundance, besides containing much wisdom, are written in the usual style of Anglo-Saxon volumes on these subjects. But many of the other chapters elaborate a semi-mystical politico-economic policy which is hard for English language readers to disentangle. It is not that there is a fundamental cleavage between Anglo-Saxon and continental ideas on politics and economics, but rather that two different languages are spoken, and two different sets of verbal symbols are utilised. Nevertheless, this is a book to be consulted by all those who are interested in the trends of thought of the governments in exile.

Irish Folklore

By Liam S. Gogan

Béaloideas. The Journal of the Folklore of Ireland Society; imleabhar xii, uimh. i-ii, Meitheamh-Nodlaig, 1942. Educational Company of Ireland. 10/6 net.

THIS issue of Béaloideas, in spite of defects, is a good recruiting number. It opens with an intriguing study of the ancient arithmetical Puzzle of the Thirty Counters by Mr. Gerard Murphy, of U.C.D. It was apparently as universal as a film of Donald Duck, and, as an internationl technique of time-wasting, can be pursued amongst the ancient warrior classes of Japan and Ireland, to say nothing of Arabs, mediæval monks and Kerry-men. The study shows besides a scholar of the kind favoured by Pangur Bán in action.

It is, of course, in English, as the proprietors of this Journal are apparently believers in the principle of Irish for the natives. There is, in fact, a good deal of very English English, much of it omittable. For instance, R. U. U. Sayce, an excellent scholar, wastes a lot of space—apologetically, to be sure—in search of a definition of folklore, as if enough had not been done on that score. The same may be said for the portentous note on Atlantic Civilisation: the writer is apparently unaware of a note on straw suits in Irish Travel of antique date or of the likely connection between toga and Irish tugha (thatch) mentioned therein. Why not Atlantean? These probing notes are merely distracting, and should be basketed: there is not a single worthwhile point in Dr. Lewy's note.

More pertinent to the function of the Journal is the collection of Oireachtas Competition games (ed. An Seabhac), which should be popularised by teachers of the language—no less than 45 are given. The excellent list of Cois Fhairrge (Galway) riddles suggests that oft-recorded specimens be no longer repeated ad nauseam. There are valuable groups of tales from Iorras Aithneach (Galway), Tir an Air (Tir Náir, Mayo), Gleann Sál (do.), Gaoth Dobhair (Donegal), Clare (a long Conall Gulban tale with a Greek opposite number, ed. O Duilearga) and miscellanea. The Gweedore group contains a tale, na Cruinnní, which preserves a tradition which may be of Viking origin—viz., the elimination of the aged by means which could not be described as euthanasia.

There are, in addition, interesting notes on the local lore of Lucan (Dublin), Drimnagh (do.) and Louth, Maclise's Hallowe'en picture and St. Gertrude. The short note on the use of standing stones in modern land division is important as recalling the common use of ancient ogham-inscribed stones in the same general area (O Floinn). Of unique value is the collection of tales collected by the Irish-American journalist - adventurer, Jeremiah Curtin, reprinted (with a biography) from American papers, and excellent notes by An Seabhac on his memories of the storytellers—all in English.

It is, perhaps, none of the reviewer's business, but in view of the paper shortage more compact publication should be aimed at, English translations abolished, with summaries only, and references reduced to a minimum; key-numbers could be used. The spate of obituaries suggests, indeed, that we are rapidly returning to type and the worship of Dis. Some attention should be paid to lexicographical details (comfhoisc, p. 121, for comhthúig in MS., cf. túiac in Dinneen, apparently from early toidhiúscadh in sense of, spring of arch)? The free use of English for exposition makes this journal an anti-revival publication, and its respect and use to that extent diminished.

Inside Fanfarlo

Shaving Through the Blitz. By G. W. Stonier. Jonathan Cape. 8/- net.

SOME time ago, if memory is correct, Mr. John Lehmann gave an account of his stewardship as editor of the Penguin New Writing; and one of his remarks was that virtually no printable matter came from people who were not known to him in advance. At the time, the reader was under the impression that the real discovery was the unknown who wrote under the name of "Fanfarlo"; so that it is, in a way, a disappointment to learn that he is that by no means unknown writer, Mr. G. W. Stonier.

But this is the only sense in which "Shaving Through the Blitz" is a disappointment. As a humorist, Mr. Stonier is sometimes wry and sometimes discomforting; but he is, in this book, always distinguished. He writes, in the character of Mr. Fanfarlo, a semi-diary of the period of the London "blitz." The blitz, at least, with the attendant nerves and neuroses, is the background; Fanfarlo himself, the fascinated introvert, is the foreground and the action. Fanfarlo in the night and in the day; Fanfarlo in the city and in the country; Fanfarlo at home, in the streets, in the Ministry of Babel; Fanfarlo awake, Fanfarlo dreaming, Fanfarlo without his teeth: the experiences and thoughts of Fanfarlo are the stuff of the book.

Inevitably, this work will be compared with "The Diary of a Nobody"; both the books are full of delicate, almost painful, satire. But Mr. Pooter is a perfect Victorian, with no humour and no imagination—he is a Nobody without knowing it. Mr. Fanfarlo has an uncontrollable imagination, a freakish sense of humour, and a masochistic delight in his own futility.

> My mornings begin with a haze. The day clears when I stand on the doorstep, nose in the wind, scanning this way and that. A passer-by would remark the greatcoat, the gloves, the black folder, the black hat. I step forward, Mr. Fanfarlo, of 7 Herpes street. Ready, a sheep in wolf's clothing, to join the multitude. Ready for anything, except the first thing that offers.

He has a nice feeling for a phrase:

> I open my eyes. How flat the world has become. At first the rain drove spiders, then the whole pavement becomes dark and satiny. We stand together looking down. The water swells along the gutter under the window, forming a herring-bone. Lizzie disturbs the pattern with her finger.

And sometimes, different as this book is from all others, there is a Thurberian strain; as when Fanfarlo loses his teeth:

> If the attack is a mild one I shall remember in a few days where I have left my teeth and the crisis will be over. It may take a week or more. It may involve having a new set made. This happened once, in the terrible winter of '39, when I was laid up for months. Lizzie, after a period of disbelief, has come to understand. At the first hint of my being off-colour—a husky, plaintive note in the voice—she merely says "Teeth?" I nod, and soon the hot water-bottle, the extra pillow, the volume of "The Arabian Nights," the steaming cups of Bovril are ready for me. There I remain till I remember where I have left them.

Mr. Stonier has written a strange book, but one worthy of the notice of all lovers of the unusual in humour.

TO EVERY IRISH MAN AND WOMAN

Please read carefully—it affects you

(1) Under an Emergency Powers Order the Minister for Supplies and for Industry and Commerce has granted a virtual monopoly of road transport to the Great Southern Railways Company in Counties Sligo, Mayo, Galway, Roscommon, and in parts of Counties Leitrim, Westmeath, Offaly—and—Tipperary. Only Licensed and Exempt Area Hauliers and the Railways Company may continue to operate as heretofore within the restricted area.

(2) It is the Minister's intention to restrict private road transport throughout the whole of Eire.

(3) By his actions he has denied to merchants their fundamental right to select the most satisfactory and most economical means of transporting their goods.

(4) The demand of the private lorry-owner for "equal sacrifices by all, equal treatment for all," is unheeded.

(5) The contribution of the private lorry-owner through direct and indirect taxation to the building of our roads is ignored. His contribution to our pre-war imports of motor spirit and lubricants, on which our present quotas are based, is disregarded. IN 1939 THE RAILWAYS COMPANY OWNED LESS THAN ONE-SEVENTEENTH OF THE TOTAL NUMBER OF COMMERCIAL GOODS VEHICLES IN EIRE.

(6) In the absence of healthy competition freight charges will rise. The resulting increased cost of food, fuel and other essential commodities must eventually be borne by you, the general public.

(7) In the name of all operators of private road transport, we appeal to you, the general public, and in particular to all legitimate commercial and other organisations to support us in our efforts to stem what may be the beginning of further nationalisation of industry.

(8) A motion seeking redress for merchants and for other private owners of road transport is about to come before Dáil Eireann. Please approach your local Teachtaí Dála, regardless of their political affiliations, and let them know your feelings regarding this vital matter. If necessary, remind them that their first duty is to YOU.

THE SITUATION IS CRITICAL—ACT NOW

TIMBER FOR SALE
Emergency Powers (Control of Timber) Order, 1941.
Emergency Powers (Control of Prices) (No. 148) Order, 1942.

Offers are invited for the purchase of 4 lots of commercial timber standing on the lands of CORTEENS, NEAR BELLEVIEW HOUSE, CO. KILKENNY, situated about 5 miles east of Waterford Railway Station.

The timber is to be sold by tender, and consists approximately of the following:—

Nos. Species.
Lot I. 1-363—142 Oak; 94 Scots Pine; 81 Silver Fir, and some Beech, Spanish Chestnut, etc.
Lot II. 364-676—214 Silver Fir; 44 Scots Pine; 38 Oak and some Ash, Elm, etc.
Lot III. 677-1105—291 Scots Pine; 98 Silver Fir and some Oak, European Larch, etc.
Lot IV. 1106-1284—138 Scots Pine; 18 Silver Fir; 14 European Larch; 5 Oak; 4 Spruce.

For removal the purchasers will be allowed 12 months.

An official will attend on the lands at 3 p.m. on Friday, 29th October, 1943, to point out the timber.

Intending purchasers must satisfy themselves as to the numbers, volumes and utility of the respective species.

Tenders for any or all of the Lots must specify in respect of each the number of the various species; their gross volume or weight; the net volume or weight, after deducting the appropriate bark allowance as shown in Column 6 of Part 1 of the Schedule of the Emergency Powers (Control of Prices) (No. 148) Order, 1942, prices offered either by cubic feet Hoppus measure, or by weight, and the uses to which the timber will be put.

The Tenders should be on the prescribed Form, should be sent in the envelopes provided, and should be addressed to reach the Secretary, Land Commission, 24 Upper Merrion street, Dublin, not later than 12 o'clock noon on Saturday, 12th November, 1943.

Intending purchasers requiring Forms of Tender and envelopes should make early application to the Secretary, Land Commission, 24 Upper Merrion street, Dublin.

The highest or any Tender may not necessarily be accepted, and no sale can be concluded unless the proposed purchaser has been issued with a permit to purchase under the Emergency Powers (Control of Timber) Order, 1941.

DUBLIN COUNTY BOROUGH
WINTER FUEL SCHEME, 1943-44.

The Winter Fuel Scheme will commence on 1st November, 1943. Fuel will be issued from that date to the classes of persons and under the conditions described below. The quantity of fuel will be 1 cwt. a week for each household. Fuel Depots will open at 9 a.m. and close at 4 p.m. Lists of the depots will be found at every Post Office and at the Employment Exchanges.

(a) OLD AGE PENSIONERS, BLIND PENSIONERS AND PERSONS IN RECEIPT OF WIDOWS' AND ORPHANS' PENSIONS.

On payment of 6d. a voucher for 1 cwt. of fuel will be issued at the Post Office where the pension is paid. The issue of vouchers will commence on Friday, 29th October, 1943.

(b) PERSONS ON UNEMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE WITH DEPENDANTS.

A voucher for 1 cwt. of fuel will be issued to persons with dependants who are entitled to Food Vouchers, on payment of 1/- at the Employment Exchange, on the day of payment of Unemployment Assistance. The issue of vouchers will commence on Thursday, 28th October, 1943.

(c) FAMILIES ON HOME ASSISTANCE WHO ARE NOT IN RECEIPT OF UNEMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE OR OLD AGE PENSIONS, PENSIONS FOR THE BLIND OR WIDOWS' AND ORPHANS' PENSIONS.

Vouchers will be issued at the Dispensaries on the days on which Assistance is paid. The first issue of vouchers will be made in week commencing Monday, 25th October, 1943. The name of the depot where the holder should go will be posted up in the Dispensaries.

(d) OTHER FAMILIES ON LOW INCOMES.

Applications for fuel at reduced rates will be received at 20 Eustace street between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. from Monday, 25th October. Approved applicants will be given a card, which will entitle them to obtain a voucher for 1 cwt. of fuel on payment of 2/- at the Post Office named on the card on Thursdays. In considering applications regard will be had to the number of dependent persons in the household, but applications will not be entertained where the total family income exceeds 65/- a week (exclusive on any emergency bonus). Applicants who are employed will be required to produce a written statement of their weekly earnings from their employers.

No household will be allowed more than 1 cwt. a week.

VOUCHERS ISSUED IN ANY WEEK WILL BE EXCHANGEABLE FOR FUEL IN THE FOLLOWING WEEK ONLY.

BARDAS NA GAILLIMHE.
PROPOSED PLANNING SCHEME.
NOTICE TO TOWN PLANNERS, ARCHITECTS AND ENGINEERS.

The Corporation of Galway requires expert technical assistance in the formulation of a comprehensive scheme of development of the city.

The development scheme within the city is to have special reference to the clearance of unhealthy areas and the subsequent utilisation of the sites. The comprehensive development plan is to make provision for a scheme within the terms of the Town and Regional Planning Acts, 1934 and 1939, and the operation of a general housing programme, including slum clearance, re-housing and the provision of houses for the ordinary requirements of the working classes.

Applications stating their qualifications and experience of such work, the terms on which they would undertake the preparation of such scheme, and give their services to the Borough Council until the scheme comes into force, and the period of time required for its completion, are invited from Town Planners, Engineers and Architects (or Town Planning Engineering and Architectural Firms) competent to render such assistance and to provide all requisite plans and documents.

Any appointment made or proposals adopted within the foregoing terms will be subject to the sanction of the Minister for Local Government and Public Health. Such engineering surveys, public health statistics and inspection records, or other relevant data, as are in the possession of the Corporation will be placed at the disposal of the person or firm selected for the work. Interested persons are advised to ascertain the extent of such existing information before making application.

Proposals and applications will be received by me up to, but not later than the 30th day of November, 1943.

The Russian Thrust

There no longer is much doubt that the position of the German armies on the southern sector of the Russian front is precarious. Furthermore, it is giving rise to undisguised concern in Berlin. In a recent article Dr. Goebbels warned the German people that they must be prepared for reverses in Russia. The sudden defection of Italy, he said, had forced the German High Command to withdraw a number of divisions from the Eastern front, with the result that a shortening of the line had become inevitable. As The Times has been insisting for some weeks past, there is some force in Dr. Goebbels's argument. The German retreat to the Dnieper was carried out more or less "according to plan." The German generals managed to disengage their armies from the advancing Russians with comparatively little loss, and, when they had transported their forces across the Dnieper, they were in a position to congratulate themselves on a fairly successful operation. Then the Russians took everybody by surprise. It was expected that Marshal Stalin's generals would halt on the eastern bank of the Dnieper in order to enable their armies to be re-organised, and, to some extent, re-grouped; but they did nothing of the kind. They realised that a breathing-space for themselves also would involve a breathing-space for the Germans; and, defying all the text-book rules of the war game, they took the broad Dnieper, as it were, in their stride, establishing a number of important bridgeheads on the western bank. It is from one of these bridgeheads that danger now threatens Germany's whole position in Southern Russia. About half-way between Kiev and the Sea of Azov, at Kremenchug, the Russians, having crossed the river, proceeded to strike towards the south in a straight line towards Odessa. They broke through the German lines, and, according to German reports, have been throwing in masses of men and armour in an effort not only to widen the breach, but also to cut off all the German forces in the Dnieper "knee," and to isolate their garrisons in the Crimea. By general consent, if this daring plan should succeed, the Germans would be faced with a military disaster comparable only to that which befell them when Marshal Paulus's Sixth Army was forced to surrender before Stalingrad. Marshal von Manstein, who is in command of the German forces in Southern Russia, is in a decidedly awkward fix. The Soviet generals since the Kremenchug break-through have been taking all sorts of risks, exposing their flanks to fairly strong German units, and opposing to the orthodox tactics of their opponents methods which would cause Karl von Clausewitz to turn in his grave.

The Germans are holding on to their positions on this part of the Russian front for two main reasons. They are anxious to retain their grip on the Crimea, which gives them important advantages in the Black Sea; and they also are more than anxious to keep possession of a little place named Nikopol, to the west of Zaporozhe. Nikopol happens to be the site of the greatest manganese-producing industry in Europe, and its loss would be a heavy blow to the German Army. In the immediate future, however, Marshal von Manstein must decide whether a determined stand in the Dnieper "knee" is worth the risk. The alternative is a withdrawal to the line of the Bug, which was the scene of such heavy fighting during the last war; but the Russians' advance from Kremenchug has been so swift that the decision may be taken out of his hands. The Russians during the last few days also have been extremely active in the far south, where they have been pressing along the coast of the Sea of Azov, in the Melitopol area, with the obvious intention, if possible, to "seal up" the bottle-neck of the Perekop peninsula, cut off the Germans in the Crimea, and, at the same time, in conjunction with the forces operating from Kremenchug, catch Marshal von Manstein's armies in a pincer's grip. The Soviet generals are working on a grandiose plan in Southern Russia. They also are taking steps to prevent the use of German reinforcements; for they have launched fresh attacks at points farther north—at Chernigov, for instance, where a break-through was reported on Thursday, and even so far away from the scene of their major offensive as the Leningrad area. German commentators recognise the gravity of the military situation, and there is no doubt that the Soviet High Command is taking the fullest advantage of its admitted superiority in man-power. Of course, the Germans also are tremendously strong. Despite the need for reinforcements in Italy and the Balkans, Herr Hitler's generals still have formidable reserves which are available for use in Russia; but the Red Army's forcing of the Dnieper was a totally unexpected development which has changed the whole complexion of affairs. If, for example, the Russians should reach the Bessarabian frontier within the next couple of weeks—in other words, if they should force the Bug as they forced the Dnieper—a totally new situation would be created in the Balkans. This consideration must be playing a not unimportant part in the strategic plans of the German High Command. The effect of Russia's recapture of the Crimea, and possibly even of Odessa, also might have a marked effect on public opinion in Turkey. In short, the struggle which is raging about the Dnieper bend at the moment may be decisive for the whole future course of the war.

Hallowe'en

All indications seem to point to the probability that Hallowe'en will be a lean feast this year. Hallowe'en was one of the first festivals to be hit by the exigencies of war, since its success depends almost entirely on the consumption of a large proportion of imported foodstuffs, which dwindled on the outbreak of war, and become more and more difficult to obtain with every succeeding year. It is true that oranges, lemons and bananas made a brief re-appearance in the shops this year, but at prices beyond the pocket of the average man; certainly they were too expensive to be purchased in anything like the profusion that would make the most of the Hallowe'en feast. In any event, the exotic fruit disappeared from the market too soon, and the family that wishes to celebrate the feast in the traditional manner will be obliged to "make do" with home-grown apples, pears and nuts. Even these homely fruits will not be available in anything like the pre-war quantities; for, at their present prices, only the wealthiest of hosts could afford to have his sideboard laden with fruit this year. Children, particularly, will find the Hallowe'en festivities unhappily curtailed. Fireworks are a thing of the past, and, while householders in residential areas may not feel unduly grieved at this shortage, there is little doubt that children who remember, or even have read about, the pre-war celebrations will find the recollection of rockets, Catherine wheels and Roman candles somewhat saddening. Another seasonal plaything which has almost entirely disappeared is the mask. There was a time, not many years ago, when the approach of October saw all the toy shops in the cities, and the general stores in the suburbs, stocked with vast quantities of masks, grave and gay, varying in hue from a literal interpretation of the "red" Indian's visage to the ever-popular, and equally literal, interpretation of the "black" man. The few children who are able to borrow sufficient cast-off clothes, to indulge in the popular Hallowe'en "dressing-up" game—and they will be few, for the clothing restrictions have diminished severely the amount of clothing classed as "cast-off" nowadays—will have to use boot-polish to complete their disguise.

OBITUARY

MR. W. P. MUSGRAVE

Mr. W. P. Musgrave, managing director of the Hotel Metropole, Cork, and other well-known businesses in that city, died yesterday morning in a Cork hospital, following a serious operation. Mr. Musgrave was a man of tireless energy, who filled an important part in the commercial life of Munster. He was a past President of the Cork Rotary Club, a leading layman of the Methodist Church, a member of its Board of Trustees (Incorporated) and Honorary Treasurer of the Children's Fund of the Church. He is survived by his wife, a daughter of the late Mr. Richard Evans, of Youghal and Dublin, and by one daughter, who is the wife of the Rev. George Kell, of Limerick, for many years a missionary in India.

DR. P. F. DOORLY

Dr. Patrick F. Doorly, who died at his residence at St. George's terrace, Carrick-on-Shannon, yesterday, was brother of the Most Rev. E. Doorly, Bishop of Elphin. He was educated at Galway, Dublin and Edinburgh Universities, was a licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, Edinburgh, and qualified at Glasgow in 1903. For two years he was medical officer at Cliffoney, Co. Sligo, before going to Carrick-on-Shannon thirty-eight years ago to fill the medical officership of Aughrim Dispensary District, Co. Roscommon. For a number of years past he has acted as Medical Officer to the Fever Hospital, Carrick-on-Shannon, under the Leitrim County Council. He is survived by a young family. His wife predeceased him a few years ago.

THE BIRCH

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It would be difficult to think of a more serious indictment of our attitude towards juvenile delinquency than the statement of District Justice Goff, that, "owing to the want of accommodation for putting boys under discipline," he was obliged to sentence four children to birching for theft! Surely the public conscience will not allow such a sentence to be carried out, or such an excuse for it to remain in existence.

Who is to blame for the increase of thieving and vandalism amongst boys? I think most people will agree that it has three main causes:

1. The spirit of sport and adventure which is not being given its natural outlet in organised games, boys' camps, etc.
2. Poverty.
3. The acquisitive spirit which, in adult life, expresses itself in gambling, profiteering, black marketing, etc. Why flog children for being so like ourselves?—Yours, etc.,

H. S. CHENEVIX,
Tigin, Killiney, Co. Dublin,
October 22nd, 1943.

CRUISKEEN LAWN

By Myles na gCopaleen

ONE aspect of this war that I most strongly disapprove of (there is no point in mincing words about this—in any case the crank of my mincer has been mislaid) is the indiscrimate use of medium bombers. That can and must end. I am broadminded if narrow-bodied but I cannot (for de Leivov-Miehe) see what the Grate Powders pardon me Great Powers hope to gain by this savage treatment of persons who, having been born with faculties which ordinary rational knowledge is inadequate to assess, make the exploitation of such faculties their way of living. And why waste men and munitions bombing séances, anyway? Surely no amount of sophistry can establish the thesis that they are military objectives. No, I must not only protest against this — I am even considering registering a protest (Maggie, blue pencil please, piece of ceiling wax and a match). Or, if you must bomb mediums, why not that congested thoroughfare the medium of Irish through which so much heavy didactic material is forced to pass (if not to Pass).

Three Crowns on a Blue Field

I am a member of both the Knights and the Masons, I admire both bodies immensely, they do a frightful lot of good work. But I always think that the most exquisite title ever bestowed on any human community is The Ancient Order of Hibernians. For sheer uninhibited unselfconscious . . . . . happiness, it excels all other such names. Who thought of it (up)? And after how many bottles of glorious malt in what smoke-stuffed snug? To be greeted with what admiring roars of approval? To be followed by what wild, hopeful, toasts? To be succeeded by what hearty songs by poor Tommy Moore? The meeting to be dissolved in what warm misty floods of usquebaugh, embraces, handshakes and oaths of undying friendship? With what visions for the not-far-distant future? With what valedictory accretions of wirrasthruas and Erin-go-braws?

The Old Bone!

Sooner or later one comes back to this question of "compulsory Irish" and from that it is not a long way off to the other question of teaching through the medium of Irish. It has been held that the teaching of "subjects" other than fishing not through Irish but through the medium of Irish leads to a generation "illiterate in two languages" and this venerable joke is expected to make us smile bitterly. Upon all this I claim to have an objective view inasmuch as I am an old Westminster man and I still prize the old battered Greek grammar that was placed in my infant hands in the old school. It was rather different with us English, I mean. One's parent-persons, when one was "born" entered one for the old school—the idea being that one should learn to fight that odd angular hereditament, one's corner. Incidentally, as it were, one became educated—viz., one "learnt" Greek. This grammar of mine has an amusing preface beginning: ALTERVM jam faeculum ad finem vergit, cum vir pietate et doctrina praestans, Edwardus Grantus . . . . and then, anti-climax. . . . . fcholae regiae Weftmonafterienfis moderator . . . . Graecam grammaticam in ufum fcholae ejufdem publicavit . . . (Terrible men for lifping in thofe days!) But anyway this old boy (I think he must have been one of the first University Grants before the County Councils came along) goes on to say Graecae linguae fpicilegium prae modeftia appellare ipfi placuit . . . . (Prae modestia, eh?) I admit I never got beyond the first page of that grammar—Graecae grammatices, I remember it said, quatuor funt partes: orthographia etymologia, fyntaxis et profodia. . . .

No doubt you see what I'm getting at. It's not so much that you have to be got out of your mother's way for a few years before you go up to Oxford; the point is that education means H.M. Humanities, i.e. one learns Greek and the grammar is in Latin because, of course, one already knows Latin. Our Irish educationalists, in reviving Irish, are therefore proceeding in a well-tried classical tradition.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
FRIDAY NIGHT.

MR. ROBERT DONAT has taken a lease of the well-known Westminster Theatre in which Lord Longford's company had successful seasons during the years before the outbreak of the war. He will produce new plays there, and later revive some distinguished old ones. He is to begin early next month with Oscar Wilde's "An Ideal Husband," first produced in 1895, and last seen in London more than twenty-five years ago, and has signed on Dame Irene Vanbrugh, Miss Rosemary Scott, Mr. Esme Percy and Mr. Ronald Culver. Mr. Rex Whistler is to plan the scenery and costumes. Mr. Donat has never lost his love of the theatre, and at the Westminster he will encourage new actors, producers and scenic artists.

Centre of Aviation

Over three-quarters of the world's population dwell in the northern hemisphere, and the industrial area between the Forth and the Clyde is nearer to America than any place else in Great Britain. It is also the nearest useful point on the United Kingdom coastline to the short "hop" route between the old world and the new, if Irish bases are left out of consideration. Furthermore, there are never more than 900 miles between airports on this short route via Iceland and Greenland, whereas the direct North Atlantic route involves a "hop" of 2,000 miles and a weight of extra fuel equal to 40 passengers. Mr. D. C. McIntyre, of Scottish Aviation, Ltd., is one of a group of energetic Scots planning to make the Forth-Clyde valleys the world's greatest centre of aviation in the post-war era. He believes that, with the exception of the high-speed luxury traffic, such as the direct night sleeper service to New York, they can ensure that the main bulk of passengers and mails will be carried from the Glasgow area, which has a clear atmosphere and good visibility day and night throughout the year.

Paid Councillors

Sir Patrick Dollan, a former Lord Provost of Glasgow, has brought in a proposal that Scottish County and Burgh Councillors should be paid for loss of working time in addition to expenses, and his suggestion has received widespread support, especially as there is a precedent in thirty-three county areas in Scotland, where members of all the education committees are paid for lost working time and expenses in attending meetings. Sir Patrick's argument is that, if Members of Parliament can be paid for their public services, Town and County Councillors, many of whom make great sacrifices to attend to their public work, should receive similar consideration. At present many of them are at considerable personal loss in helping the community.

New Keyboard

A new arrangement of the letters on the typewriter keyboard, which has just been completed in America, has allowed a typist to average 180 words a minute for a short time, thus breaking the world's record speed. The new arrangement divides the work between the two hands, as to 44 per cent. for the left and 56 per cent. for the right. On the standard keyboard, which has been unchanged for 40 to 50 years, analysis shows that the left hand does 57 per cent. of the work and the right 43 per cent.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Absent-mindedness

A few days ago (writes a correspondent) I saw an elderly lady walking down Grafton street in a pair of dark grey and black slippers, with black fur round the edges. I remembered the pyjamaed youth who appeared in Grafton street, for a bet, some months ago, and thought: "Perhaps a story!"

Summoning up courage, I touched the lady on the arm, and said: "I beg your pardon, but are those bedroom slippers that you have on?"

She looked down—that was enough. With a cry of horror: "My goodness, they are!" she turned and dashed for home.

Enquiring of a number of male friends if they had ever made such a slip, I found that three men to whom I put the question had at some time absent-mindedly gone out in their bedroom slippers. One man, dressed in hat and overcoat, left his house for his office, and had gone to the 'bus stop before he noticed his mistake. Another was stopped at his garden gate by frantic knocking on a window. He had gone out with bowler hat and plus fours.

"Candida"

Those who heard the radio version of "Candida" last Saturday night must have found it difficult to realise that the play was written nearly half a century ago, and produced for the first time in 1897—on a provincial tour, with Janet Achurch in the title part.

It was in "Candida" that Mr. Bernard Shaw considered that he had struck the true vein of his dramatic genius, for he would never allow the manuscript out of his hands. "I never let people read that," he confided to Ellen Terry, "I always read it to them. They can be heard sobbing three streets off."

The first London production was at the Strand Theatre, on July 1st, 1900, under the auspices of the Stage Society. "Candida" was a huge success; the author, in his speech afterwards, congratulated the audience on being sixteen years in advance of their age. Charles Wyndham, six years before, had informed him that "Candida" was 25 years before its time.

On Saturday we had as Candida, Miss Phyllis Neilson Terry, whose famous grandmother Shaw would have liked to have in the first production. Miss Terry has not been seen on a theatre stage for two years, as she is engaged in lecturing for the Government—on other stages—upon such varied subjects as restaurants, book drives and vitamin content.

The Home Gardener

The comparatively recent enthusiasm for growing one's own vegetables will receive a most powerful "fillip" from the re-created South Dublin Horticultural Society, whose activities are widespread and effective. Under the leadership of Dr. Preston Ball and Captain Archie Mateer, the secretary, of Maple Grove, Ballybrack, the society has been reformed and energised. Competitions are held for sprouts, cabbages, and so forth, when in season, and handsome cups are awarded, as well as money prizes, for professionals and amateurs.

Lectures are held for the less experienced and the more aspiring, while the spring and summer shows provide many classes for plotholders and amateurs, as well as for the "nabobs" who can run to a regular gardener.

The subscription, I am told, is only five shillings a year, which in view of the society's work is most excellent value. Members are much in demand for the resurgent society, and Captain Mateer has asked me to say that a ring to him (81880) will be attended to with pleasure.

In a Name

I am always interested to observe the way in which fashions in Christian names fluctuate. To some extent, one can actually date a person from his or her name. John and James and Mary and such, of course, are timeless; but some others give quite a good index.

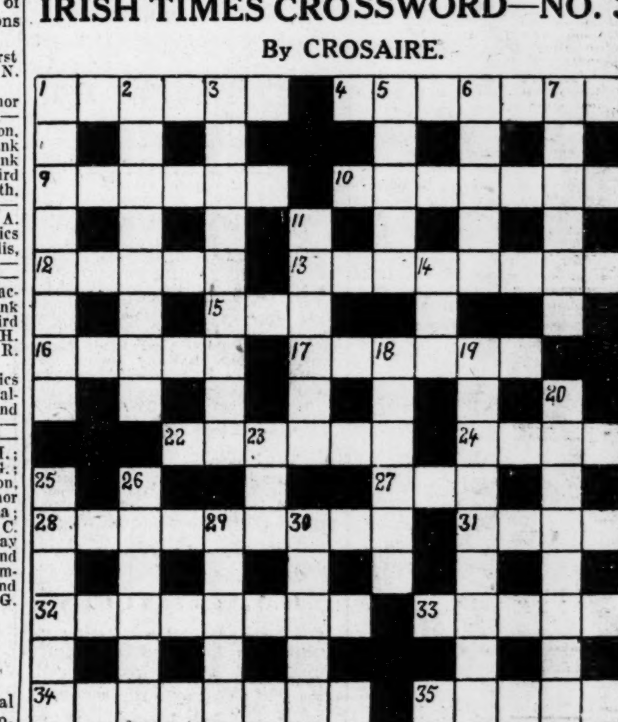

Charlotte, Alexandra, Emily and such are unmistakably from the reign of Victoria or Edward; Jane, Joan and June had their hey-day at the christenings in the 'twenties; now Valerie, Stephanie and the like appear to be gaining ground. Shirley, of course, dates a child as surely as a band clipped round the leg, and Marina puts her in a specific year, not merely in an epoch.

Boys are less affected by changes of taste—there will always be a George—but this war has given America a fair crop of Douglasses, some of them with the further title of MacArthur. And I see that a Northern clergyman has recently had to christen a child Winston Churchill Alexander Montgomery.

Double for Dreaper?

THERE is plenty of variety about the programme for Leopardstown this afternoon, and the large number of horses for which declarations have been made ensures that racing will maintain a high level of interest throughout.

Mr. T. Dreaper looks to have a good chance of winning both the Johnstown Hurdle and Laragh 'Chase, in each of which he holds a strong hand.

Dunseverick won so easily at the Curragh last week that he may set his 7lb. penalty at defiance in the Holywood Handicap, in which, however, it should be noted that the stable has another worthy representative in Red Thorn, who is in here with a handy weight. The better of the pair should about win. Selections:—

Avoca Nursery—Priorate.
Annamoe Plate—Ceilidhe.
Johnstown Hurdle—T. Dreaper's Selected.
Kilbride Hurdle—Duna.
Laragh 'Chase — T. Dreaper's Selected.
Holywood Handicap—Dunseverick or Red Thorn.
Arklow Plate—Golden Souvenir.

Curragh Selections:—2.35, Loaded Dice; 3.0, High Spirits; 3.25, Path of Glory or Sparkling Hock; 3.55, Doremi; 4.25, Hamlet; 4.55, Dunseverick; 5.20, First of the Dandies.

Tots double on 4th and 6th races.

LEOPARDSTOWN 'CHASE

Weights for the £1,000 Leopardstown 'Chase (2½ miles), to be run at Leopardstown on Saturday, November 20, are:—Mountain Loch, 12-7; Roman Hackle, 12-0; Prince Blackthorn, 11-13; Knockadroleen, 11-10; Brown Admiral, 11-8; Kai Lung, 11-8; Desert Star, 11-7; Broken Promise, 11-6; Sir Sen, 11-6; Son Bird, 11-4; Hamlet, 11-4; Red Wind, 11-3; Mount Brown, 11-2; Kilnaglory, 11-2; Derrygrath, 11-0; Funny, 10-13; Smerwick's Nephew, 10-13; Erinox, 10-12; Kilstar, 10-12; Capital Star, 10-11; Swindon Glory, 10-10; Saffron Hill, 10-10; Beakstown, 10-9; Drumbilla, 10-5; Monk's Mistake, 10-5; Housewarmer, 10-5; Verbatim, 10-4; Glengormley, 10-3; Trigger Jack, 10-1; Ruby Loch, 10-1; My Cherry, 10-0; Knight's Crest, 9-13; Western Dandy, 9-12; Slieve Dub, 9-9; Sergeant Dunne, 9-7; Flying Lover, 9-7; Dan Kelly, 9-7; Steel Flame, 9-7; Kerboga, 9-7; Yung Yat, 9-7; Sen's Pride, 9-7; Lady Caslmond, 9-7; Golden View II, 9-7; Nonna's Cottage, 9-7; Baldonnell, 9-7; Messenger Girl, 9-7; Bantry Boy, 9-7; Summer Star, 9-7; Lovely Cottage, 9-7; Eastern Realm drawn.

£1,000 'CHASE AT BALDOYLE

Included in the programme for the February meeting at Baldoyle will be the Baldoyle Handicap Steeplechase of £1,000, to be run over 3 miles 100 yards. The entrance will be £2, with two striking-out dates.

Dowdall Beats Cullen

Heavy-weight contests always arouse intense interest, and last night's event at the Stadium was no exception, although from the scientific point of view it was poor stuff. J. Bailey (Garda) and J. Teehan (Phœnix), both novices, were the contendants. The bout was full of incident. Teehan was the superior, and had his opponent down twice; but his over-eagerness almost led him to break the rules several times during the first three rounds. When, at the start of the last round, the referee gave the customary order to shake hands, Teehan ignored him and knocked Bailey to the canvas with a heavy right. He was at once disqualified.

The challenge match between Corpl. P. Dowdall and G. Cullen was a hard-hitting affair, much punishment being given and received on both sides. On balance, Dowdall was the better, and was definitely on top in the last round. He was the winner on points.

The bout between G. Kearns and F. Bermingham was one of the most attractive of the night, both boxers, who were at the top in the juvenile ranks last season, showing good technique. Kearns was, perhaps, the more aggressive, but Bermingham excelled in anticipation, and his quick counter gave the hard-hitting juvenile champion much trouble. The footwork of both was extremely good. Bermingham, a little the steadier, won on points.

Feather—W. Gifford (Army and North City) beat W. Ryan (Avona), retired in sixth round with a sprained ankle; Cpl. J. Kenny (Army and Arbour Hill) k.o. P. Hawkins (Avona) in third round.

Light—K. Doyle (Arbour Hill) beat P. Byrne (C.B.S.) on points; Cpl. P. Dowdall (Clancy) beat G. Cullen (C.B.S.) on points.

Heavy—J. Bailey (Garda) beat J. Teehan (Phœnix), disqualified in last round.

Juvenile—B. Carabini (C.B.S.) beat D. Connell (Avona) on points.

Fly—F. Bermingham (Imperial Tobacco Co.) beat G. Kearns (Avona) on points; E. Fitzsimons (Liverpool) beat W. Daly (Avona) on points.

Bantam—P. Dowling (Avona) beat R. Hyland (Corinthians) on points.

The 7th Brigade already has won the All-Army Soccer final (in which they defeated the 2nd Brigade) and the All-Army Rugby final (in which they defeated the 6th Brigade). In Gaelic football they defeated the Southern Command, 1st and 3rd Brigades, Shannon Rangers, Boherbee, and North Kerry selected.

DEATH OF MR. RICHARD YOUNG

His many friends in racing circles in Ireland will learn with regret of the death of Mr. Richard Young, which took place at his residence at Melton Mowbray, Leicestershire. The late Mr. Young, who had acted as starter at many Northern England meetings for several years, was partner in the well-known horse-dealing firm of Messrs. Young and Co. A great believer in Irish bloodstock, he was well known to breeders in this country.

Parents Refused Custody of Child

The Lord Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Megaw, in the High Court, Belfast, yesterday, refused to make an order, the effect of which would have been to take a fourteen-and-a-half years old girl out of the control of her maternal grandmother and hand her over to her parents.

Robert Alexander Wisner, of Ballynarris, Bushmills, Co. Antrim, and his wife sought the custody of the girl, Hilda Myrtle, from Mrs. Mary McKeown, of Ballylough, Bushmills.

The Lord Chief Justice said the grandmother maintained that the girl was brought up in her home from a very early age. They had had an interview with the girl and were satisfied that the effection for the father and mother was not equal to that which the girl always had for her grandmother.

Shoe Rivets Case Concluding

This will be the seventh day of the trial of the five men charged, at the Circuit Criminal Court, Dublin, with feloniously receiving from James Quinn, Shaw street, shoe-making accessories, valued at £134, or portion thereof, the property of the British United Shoe Machinery Co., Pearse street.

The Judge had not completed his summing up last night, and the Court was adjourned until this morning.

The accused men are: Samuel Milton, Glendun road, Whitehall; A. W. Mooney, Naas road, Inchicore; Alexander Graham, Botanic road; Patrick McManmon, Portmarnock, and John Halpin, Upper Abbey street.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy, S.C., and Mr. S. Hooper (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted.

Mr. M. J. Sweeney (instructed by P. F. O'Reilly) appeared for Milton and Mooney; Mr. W. O'B. Fitzgerald (instructed by J. Fagan and Co.) for Graham; Mr. T. F. O'Higgins (instructed by F. G. Burke) for McManmon. Halpin was not professionally represented.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

A lecture on Christian Science was delivered to a large audience at Rathmines Park last night by Eric W. Carr, C.S.B., of London, member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The lecturer said in part:—"Christian science has come to reveal to the world the healing Christ, and can anyone say that mankind is not in need of such healing and comfort? The older denominations of Christianity have preserved the Scriptures and have held forth the life and teaching of Jesus as an example for us all. They have striven to purify our lives and to bring about better conditions, and for this we owe them a debt of gratitude. But what we really need to-day is a spiritual message; we need to get right to the heart of Jesus's teaching and to see that, while better human conditions and clean, moral lives are necessary, there is something far more than we require—a spiritual outlook and spiritually-governed lives. This is the great import of Christian science and its message to mankind, and with the spirituality which Christian science introduces we find the restoration of primitive Christian healing.

"Those who know little or nothing about Christian science can have no idea of how completely it changes one's outlook upon life, and very much for the better.

"Sometimes we come across people whose only concept of Christian science seems to be that it is composed of persons who refuse to have doctors when they are ill. Here let me say that we have nothing but respect and regard for the grand men and women who are devoting their lives to the relief of sickness and suffering by material means. But the fact remains that in Christian science we have a better method of treating sickness. In all the walks of life, if we find a better way of doing anything, our custom is to drop the old method and to take to the new one. And so it is with healing, and it is a fact that very many have only turned to Christian science after material means have failed."

3,000,000 ACRES FOR TILLAGE

THREE million acres of land, exclusive of first-year grass, will be tilled in the Twenty-six Counties next year. This will be the outcome of the new compulsory Tillage Order, Dr. JAMES RYAN, Minister for Agriculture, told the Dail last night, when, after a colourless three days' debate, the House approved of the agricultural estimate.

Beneath the welter of criticism and suggestion on various aspects of agricultural economy by a majority of the members of the House the underlying note was the tussle between the farmer and the townsman. The farmers were on the defensive, claiming, in face of allegations that they were letting the people down, that they had never failed to provide a sufficiency of food as long as they were given the facilities to produce it.

Clann na Talmhan was subjected to strong words by Mr. T. LINEHAN (F.G.), who invited them to say how much would be passed on to the agricultural labourer, even if they were getting £20 a ton for their beet. Working farmers, he said, were not demanding one-tenth of the things the Clann was looking for. "The worst day's work ever done for the farmer was the preaching of this policy of despair. If you are being robbed in the prices you are getting for wheat, beet, and other produce, then anyone would say that nobody but a lunatic would continue in agriculture in this country," he declared. The only thing the farmer expected from the Government was the right to compete on equal terms with other countries.

THE STUD FARMS

Doubts concerning the available labour supply in budgetting for three million acres of tillage were expressed by Mr. W. T. COSGRAVE (F.G.), who said that a strong case could be made for the exclusion of dairy and stud farms from the Tillage Order. There were signs that in a few years stud farms would repay the sums being expended on them now, and it would be a pity if the animals had to be got rid of and large numbers of workers dismissed. If ten per cent. of the present wheat extraction was excluded from the flour they would have a better loaf and also have offals available for cattle feeding. Agricultural income in an average year of 73 millions for 63,000 people represented less than £16 per head, out of which they had to pay annuities, rates, and an agricultural wage of £3 a week. That could not be done unless production was increased both in quantity and value, which had decreased to a lower level per head than in Britain or Northern Ireland.

Foreshadowing a ban on exports of cattle unless the animals were certified innoculated against disease he urged immunisation against contagious abortion, and, if they reached the point where their agricultural production ranked highest in the competitive markets, it would be worth some sacrifice now.

Lack of machinery and organisation was held by CAPT. P. GILES (F.G.) to have led to the loss of sufficient wheat in Co. Meath to have fed the country for a fortnight, and he alleged that farms in that county were being bought up over night by the Jews, publicans and racketeers from Dublin, who did not even see the ground, but bought it over the telephone.

PRODUCTION PRICE

Defending the farmers, Mr. P. J. HALLIDEN (C. na T.) said that they never had tried to exploit the towns and cities, but if they were assured a sufficient price they would produce the food. Mentioning successful innoculation of cattle in Britain and the United States against contagious abortion, he said that he had tried to obtain the serum, but was told that it could not be got.

"Examine your conscience," said Mr. James Larkin (Labour) addressing the Government benches. "Hundreds of thousands of our people who are now wearing the uniforms of another country did not do that for a joke. What have the Government done to help them make a living in their own country?"

A suggestion by another backbencher that women should be recruited for land work, brought a strong denunciation from Mr. OLIVER J. FLANAGAN (M.R.), who described the proposal as shameful, and said that it would be a sad commentary on our position if we had to put our women behind the plough.

Suggesting that the Government should take over more arable land and divide it among tenant farmers, Mr. M. MORAN (F.F.) said that those who had studied the progress of the colonies that were migrated from the congested districts to the Midlands—studied it, not through the eyes of the Irish Times, but impartially—were surprised to see how agricultural production could be increased and how well people from mountainous districts had contributed to the increase.

A motion to refer back the estimate was defeated by 63 votes to 39, Labour voting with the Government and Clann na Talmhan against.

The House adjourned till 3 p.m. on Wednesday next.

IRISH NEWS IN BRIEF

Riveters' Strike.—Some 400 riveters in a Belfast firm engaged stopped work yesterday as a result, it is understood, of a wages question.

Dairy Farmers' Claim.—Douglas, Co. Cork, Farmers' Union has adopted a resolution requesting the Minister for Agriculture to modify the new Tillage Order in respect of farmers producing milk for Cork City, lest there be a reduction in milk production.

Youghal Looks Ahead.—At a public meeting held in Strand Palace, Youghal, an active committee was formed, with Mr. M. Ahern as chairman, the object being to make Youghal more attractive for visitors. It is the intention of the committee to co-operate with both the I.T.A. and the Irish Tourist Board.

Charged 57/6 for Cycle Tyre.—At Roscommon District Court, Michael J. Reaney, Castle street, was fined £15 for offering for sale one Dunlop Champion bicycle tyre for £2 17/6, the controlled price being 6/10. He was also fined £1 for selling a tyre by retail without a licence, and ordered to pay expenses and costs amounting to 21/-.

Balbriggan P.P.'s Golden Jubilee.—Very Rev. J. Canon Hickey, P.P., V.F., Balbriggan, will celebrate, in December, the golden jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood. At a largely attended meeting of the parishioners, held in the C.Y.M.S. Hall, Balbriggan, it was decided to mark the occasion by making him a suitable presentation.

Decree Against G.N.R.—Arising out of a road accident in September of last year, Denis McGee, a minor, by his father, Patrick McGee, of Ray, Falcarragh, was awarded £100 compensation, and £44 special expenses and costs, at Letterkenny, against the Great Northern Railway Company for personal injuries.

Using Absentee's Ration Book.—Miss Mary Murray, St. Cronan's road, Little Bray, was, at Bray yesterday, fined 10/- for not surrendering a ration book, the property of her sister, who had left the country. In respect of a number of summonses against her for obtaining supplies of sugar, soap, tea and butter in excess of one ration coupon during divers weeks, District Justice Price made no order.

School Meals Plan in North.—When the Regional Education Committee yesterday discussed the free meals scheme at Enniskillen, the Secretary said that the Ministry of Education was prepared to build and equip kitchens for the supply of free and other school meals to the children of elementary, technical and secondary schools free of charge. The committee adjourned the scheme for a more detailed examination.

Causes of Northern Fires.—Of the 42 fires which occurred in Northern Ireland in the past three months, more than 50 per cent. could have been prevented, says an official statement issued in Belfast yesterday. Seventeen outbreaks were caused through the thoughtlessness of smokers and six were due to children playing with fire.

Damages for Cyclist.—Miss Mary Fitzgerald, clerk, of Castlewood, Durrow, who was struck and knocked from her bicycle by a block of wood that fell from a lorry owned by Patrick Mahoney, Greenshill, Kilkenny, at Dunmore, on January 23 last, is to be paid £160, and a sum for costs, in settlement of her action for damages against Mr. Mahoney. This was announced to Mr. Justice Haugh in the High Court, Dublin, yesterday.

"Foreign" Dances Ban.—Refusing a licence to continue dancing at Tallanstown, Co. Louth, Hall, District Justice Goff, at Ardee yesterday, said the applicants, who called themselves the Glyde Rangers G.F.C. Rooms Committee, had refused to change their name, and if they were allowed to continue what was predominantly foreign dancing the rule of the G.A.A. would be made a farce.

Cigarette Price List.—"I can see that the Department of Supplies want to have the regulations enforced, and the Court must support the Department," said District Justice Price at Bray yesterday, when Kathleen Meckin, Main street, Bray, was summoned for failing to display in her shop a cigarette price list. He applied the Probation Act, and ordered the defendant to pay £1 1s. 0d. costs.

Crumlin Off-Licence Refused.—Refusing the application of Thomas Paul Byrne, 186-188 Crumlin road, for an off-licence to sell intoxicating liquor at those premises, District Justice Mangan, in Dublin yesterday, said that he did so because the premises were unsuitable as they stood, and there would be difficulty of supervision. He also was satisfied that there was not sufficient demand to warrant an increase in the number of licensed premises in the area.

Cork Cinema Workers' Claim.—That taxation was so graded as to make price increases for cinema seats almost inoperable was stated by Mr. J. O'Brien, secretary of the Federated Union of Employers at a Wages Advisory Tribunal in Cork yesetrday, which considered an application from the I.T.G.W. for a bonus order for Cork cinema workers. Mr. O'Brien said that since the emergency increases had been given of 9/- per week to males, 6/- to females and 4/6 to juveniles.

EMERGENCY NEVER ENDS FOR THEM

Many children living in the congested areas of Dublin seemed to be less thought of than caged animals, said Captain G. Hogarty, who was elected President at the annual meeting of the St. Camillus First Aid Corps, which was held at the headquarters, 17 Lower Rathmines road, Dublin, on Wednesday night. It was the only first aid organisation in Eire, he said, which took no part in the work of the emergency, being fully occupied with the never-ending "emergency" conditions under which the poor live.

The report stated that since their inception in July, 1940, they had attended 12,000 cases, an average of 70 a week, and were now urgently in need of public subscriptions.

Captain D. McNeill was elected Corps Captain, Miss M. McGivern Finance Officer, and Mr. D. P. Gilfedder, General Secretary.

RECENT SALES

At the sale of 37 Mespil road, Dublin, at Jury's Hotel, Mr. W. H. Browne, auctioneer, disposed of this property at a price well above the reserve. In his last auction, in September, he sold No. 104 Howth road at £1,600. Mr. Browne has just disposed of a residence at Glenageary for £8,000 to a well-known Dublin business man.

Gardening Lectures.—The South Dublin Horticultural Society has arranged a series of lectures on the second Friday of each month in the Dun Laoghaire Vocational School, beginning on November 12th with a lecture on "The Winter Care of Fruit."

RALPH CUSACK'S PICTURES

An exhibition of pictures by Ralph Cusack opened at 7 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin, on Thursday. Mr. Cusack is one of the liveliest of the more experimental school of contemporary Irish artists. He concedes only a certain amount to naturalistic representation. His forms tend mostly to be rather summary, and so to depend for their effect on decorative pattern and vivacious colour. Yet he is not a two-dimensional artist. Thus in this exhibition the sense of perspective is notably developed in the beautiful "Invasion Posts on Winter Strand." This, perhaps the most satisfying picture in the show, with its combination of graceful shapes, radiant colour, and immense distance, produces something of the sense of that beato solitudo which we associate with the desert studies of the French artist, Lurçat.

But there are gay fantasies here, too, and such pictures as "Christmas in My Studio" and "Drumgoff Bridge" are full of colourful movement, light and charm. Again, "The Cell," with its unusually wide range of colour harmonies, strikes a curious note of tragic intensity and exaltation, and "Quartet and Audience" is an interesting and in many ways satisfying attempt to transfer a musical effect into terms of visual expression.

Place of Small Country Town in Planning

Warm praise for the small country town and suggestions for its improvement were voiced at a conference organised by the Town and Country Planning Association, which opened in London yesterday. Representatives of English country towns were present to formulate a common policy. Mr. Frank Gibney, the Dublin architect, is to address the conference to-day.

Better cultural and recreational opportunities, more modern cinemas, and planning on garden city lines were advocated.

Miss R. G. Roper, Deputy Mayor of Richmond, Yorkshire, said that the large cities and towns feared that an extension of the small country towns would mean a financial loss to them and a gain to others. They were parochially-minded instead of nationally minded.

Professor Ashby said that, in proportion to population, there were as many lonely people in small towns as in large towns.

Mr. Basil Langton, director of the travelling repertory theatre, said: "Only one in fifty towns in England has a proper theatre, and over three-quarters of the population have never seen a play. The practical answer to this is that the theatre must be decentralised from London. This cannot be done until the towns build suitable buildings for the practice and enjoyment of the arts."

Extra Bonus Granted To Northern Rail Workers

BASING their claim on the grounds that the employees were under the same restrictions arising from war conditions as their colleagues in Britain, who received a higher war bonus, railway unions applied to the Irish Railways Wages Tribunal in Dublin yesterday for an extra bonus of 10s. for 5,589 members of the clerical, supervisory, administrative and conciliation staffs employed at Northern stations by the companies there. An additional bonus of 3s. to adult and 1s. 6d. to junior members of the staffs was granted.

A railway porter in Northern Ireland received 19s. 3d. less than in England, Mr. C. D. Watters, National Union of Railwaymen, said. It was pleasureable, he said, to note the change in the G.S.R. policy that came under new management. They had agreed to give the full bonus of 10s. from the date it was permissible and to pay it without troubling the Tribunal.

The abstracts of the G.N.R. income from 1933 to 1942 showed a net improvement of £781,233, and a credit balance of £746,549, while in the same period reserves had risen by over 128 per cent., and the other companies were similarly circumstanced.

Mr. G. B. Howden, representing five Northern railway companies, said that, so far as the cost of living index figure could be taken as a criterion, there was no justification for an increase. Portion of the 42 per cent. rise in labour costs was likely to remain for several years after the emergency, in which case higher costs to the public of all railway services would be necessary. The railways were unlikely to receive any help from the Government after the war, when there would be other pressing calls, especially in Northern Ireland, where, before the emergency it was held in many quarters that the railways were not necessary.

The cost of working the Northern Ireland railways in 1943 had increased very appreciably, while gross receipts had fallen.

Two Jailed for Sugar Thefts

At Belfast City Commission yesterday David M. Houston, jun., of 43 Marina Park, was found not guilty of having broken into a store in Great Patrick street and stolen 100 bags of sugar, the property of the Ministry of Food. Robert J. Stewart, lorry driver, of 16 Sally Gardens, and John Hanwood, lorry helper, of Eglinton street, pleaded guilty to the charges, and were sentenced to twelve months' and eighteen months' imprisonment respectively.

Houston, who is a grocer, stated in evidence that he was short of sugar, and asked a man named Hyland to get him some in the "black market" at a shilling a pound. He admitted that his lorry was taken to Great Patrick street, and that 100 bags of sugar were removed from a store. He was told that the sugar was surplus from a confectionery factory, and he paid Hyland £56 for half a ton. "I had no knowledge or suspicion that the sugar was stolen," he declared. "I thought it was ordinary 'black market' sugar."

Mr. Justice Brown, in his summing up, said that Hyland was a real person, but had not been called. He had been interviewed by the police, who presumably considered that he was innocent in the matter.

An indictment against James Hewitt, 36 Ballyholme Drive, of counselling and procuring the two convicted men, was withdrawn.

Post-war Planning

Mr. C. J. O'Flynn, County Manager, when proposing a vote of thanks to Mr. R. J. P. Mortished, of the International Labour Office, for a lecture on "Post-War Planning" in Galway Chamber of Commerce, said he did not agree with those who held that we would be penalised for our neutrality. The British people were fairly broad-minded, and not vindictive. Our neutrality had proved to members of the British Commonwealth that the Statute of Westminster was not a scrap of paper, and they might be our best friends in forming an international post-war policy.

Mr. Mortished said that in this country a great many activities, such as law, were carried on on a scale which we could not afford, and the energy devoted to them should be devoted to scientific research, education and productive things.

Tobacco Growers' Demand

Tobacco growers in Tullow, County Carlow, yesterday decided to apply for an advance in the price of tobacco to maintain the present acreage. Mr. George B. Jackson, Kilkea re-handling station, was present. Sowing for the present year had decreased 80 acres on that of 1942, growers this year numbering 126, as compared with 250 last year.

NEW ISSUE

Another important issue of new Ordinary capital for the purpose of redeeming Debentures was announced yesterday. The company is Richardsons, Westgarth and Co., the Wallsend-on-Tyne marine and electrical engineers. Last month notice was given to the holders of £168,206 p.c. Debenture stock that redemption would be effected on December 31 at £105 p.c. The directors have decided to issue 707,744 Ordinary shares of 5/- each and to offer them, in the first instance, to the present shareholders at 5/4½ per share in the proportion of one new share for every five shares held. "Rights" to the issue of the new shares will be forfeited if not exercised on or before November 13.

Buoyant Mining Market

THERE was still no increase in the volume of business on the London Stock Exchange yesterday, and the usual week-end influence was operating.

Kaffirs were active by comparison with the rest of the market. In the Orange Free State group Lydenburg rose another 1/10½ to 50/7½. S.A. Towns hardened 3d. to 25/9, and "Wits" 3d. to 36/6. Among Far West Rand issues Blyvoor gained 2/6 to 88/9, and Western Holdings were buoyant.

Profit-taking caused a small decline in British Rails. Great Western Ord. fell ¼ to 59¾, and L.M.S. Ord. ¼ to 32¼. Southern Deferred also fell ¼ to 24¼.

In the Industrial market De La Rue rose ¼ to 8¼, but "Emmies" were down 3d. at 26/4½, and Coats 6d. lower at 54/10½. Imperial Tobacco were 1/16 higher at 7⅞. Great Universal Stores regained 6d. to 22/6, and Prudential "A" eased ¼ to 24 after their recent strength.

The Oil market was still dull, and Shell fell 7½d. to 79/4½. Trinidad issues also weakened.

PRESSED STEEL

The fine recovery made by the Pressed Steel Company since it underwent a capital reorganisation in 1935 is recalled by the announcement that the company is maintaining its interim dividend at 10 p.c. This is the sixth year that this rate has been paid, and each year so far it has been followed by a final of 17½ p.c. The capital is now £1,318,611, to which it was reduced from £1,600,000. Of the total, £828,611 is in 5/- Ord. units. It specialises in the manufacture of pressed steel bodies and parts for motor vehicles, aeroplanes and refrigerators. Its opportunities for successful business in post-war years should be considerable. Its financial position is strong, the last balance sheet showing a surplus of current assets of £1,329,725. The 5/- units are 28/-, at which they yield just under 5 p.c.

Particular interest attaches to the forthcoming interim dividend of Marks and Spencers, Ltd. For many years the interim has been 15 p.c., and, in view of the cut made in the interim payment of Woolworths from 20 to 10 p.c. in June, some anxiety on the matter is understandable. The cut in the Woolworth interim indicates a further reduction in profits, and the question is whether the same experience has befallen Marks and Spencers.

Movements in share prices during the present year indicate that investors have more faith in Marks and Spencers than in Woolworths. The shares of the former steadily appreciated from about 44/6 in January to 58/- in September, while those of Woolworths have remained in the neighbourhood of 58/-. To-day both are slightly below the highest, but, on the last full year's dividend, Marks and Spencer (35 p.c.) only yield £3 3/1, while Woolworths (50 p.c.) yield £4 6/11.

Bank Shares Bought

MARKETS began rather quietly on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, but as the day progressed public interest inclined to broaden. There was small buying of Banks, and they tended higher. Home Rails made a steadier showing, and Irish Industrials held steady.

Home Funds were well maintained, and Third National Loan rose to 112½, while Conversion gained 10/- at 111½. Other issues showed no change, apart from 4½ p.c. Land Bonds which eased to 118 5/16.

3½ Per cent. War Loan lost a fraction, and Limerick 3½ p.c. gave way to ½ prem. Firm conditions prevailed among Banks. Hibernians, Munster and Leinsters, and National all gained pence; but Provincial Old dipped to 47/3.

Guinness units held steady at 123/-, and Grand Canal Pref. rose to 112/9. In Rails, Great Southerns were steadier, although the Gtd. slipped back to 45. The Ord. and Pref. showed no change, and the Deb. improved to 72. Great Northern Ord. and Pref. both inclined to harden.

Dublin Transport Pref. were raised to 26/9, and Alliance Gas Ord. hardened to 22/7½. In Draperies, Pim Bros. Deb. jumped 5 points to 80.

Irish Times 1st Pref. spurted 1/- to 90/-, and Burke Deb. 1/- to 183/-. Central Hotel Ord. firmed up to 11/3, and Pye (Ireland) Ord. to 8/6.

Textiles were easier, with Coats Ord. 45/6, and Courtaulds 53/1½.

Promising Rand Developments

Developments of importance to the general body of Witwatersrand Gold Mining shareholders are contained in the annual reports to June 30 last of three well-known mines. These are Consolidated Main Reef, Libanon and Luipaards Vlei. It is pointed out by Mr. C. L. Butlin, consulting engineer for the Central Mining and Investment Corporation, that the policy of confining developments at Consolidated Main Reef to areas of higher promise, so that the ore reserve position should, as far as possible, be maintained, means that the prospects of opening up payable ore in future development have been correspondingly reduced.

During the three months prior to the closing down of the Libanon Gold Mining Company's property (which was placed on a care and maintenance basis) payability was 59.7 per cent., averaging 7.4 dwt. gold per ton of ore over a width of 51.3 inches.

Some of the best developments in its 38 years' history are reported by Luipaards Vlei. Working profits, at £469,108, compare with £512,745. Dividends of 33 1-3 per cent. compare with 37½ per cent., leaving £229,383 (against £204,697) unappropriated.

COMPANY NEWS

British Electric Traction.—Working profit, £526,954 (against £624,216). Dividends total 21¼ per cent., compared with 25 per cent.

Libanon.—Balance of working capital in hand at June 30 last was £155,143, against £177,667 at June 30, 1942.

How to Avoid Slump

Speaking at the annual meeting of the York Street Flax Spinning Co. in Belfast yesterday, the Chairman (the Right Hon. Harry Mulholland) said that, while they all disliked Government control, they disliked the slump which inevitably followed a boom even more, and were, therefore, prepared to accept necessary control until normal trading conditions were restored. The cure was to avoid a boom by keeping prices steady.

PAIN WAS WEARING HER OUT

She Could Not Straighten Her Back

In 3 Weeks Kruschen Made a Wonderful Difference

For six weeks this woman endured the pains of backache. It was wearing her out. Then she began to take Kruschen, and in three weeks, what a difference there was! But let her tell the story herself:—

"About six weeks ago, I started having awful pains in my back. Sometimes I could not straighten myself, and I got depressed and worn out. I could scarcely carry on with my household duties, and everything was getting neglected. It was then I saw a Kruschen advertisement, and I decided to give Kruschen Salts a trial. I started with a small teaspoonful in hot water every morning, and in three weeks, my word, what a difference! The pains gradually disappeared. To-day, at 46, I feel 10 years younger—it was my lucky day when I first started to use Kruschen."—(Mrs.) H.M.

Pains in the back are usually due to poisons in the blood—poisonous waste products which tired kidneys are failing to filter from the system. The mineral salts in Kruschen coax your kidneys back to healthy, normal action, so that not a particle of poisonous waste matter remains unexpelled. Your inside is thus kept clean and serene. You experience joyous relief from those old dragging kidney pains.

Kruschen Salts is sold by all Chemists, price 1/9 per bottle.

The Better Varieties of Apples

By G. O. SHERRARD, B.Sc.

FROM October 1st until Christmas the apple gourmet is very happy; for he can have on his table the most finely-flavoured apples of the year. He will, in all probability, have to grow them himself, because he will not find many of them on sale in the shops. However, by the use of cordons or dwarf bush trees worked on No. IX. stock a large variety can be accommodated in a small garden, and the trees bear fruit in a short time.

In a previous article I discussed the apples ripening in August and September, finishing with that fine variety, James Grieve. It is worthily succeeded by Laxton's Fortune, one of the newer dessert varieties, and a seedling from Cox's Orange Pippin, with a flavour distinctly reminiscent of its distinguished parent. In addition to flavour, this apple possesses a most attractive appearance, and the tree seems to be a good grower.

FOR OCTOBER USE

Kerry Pippin, an apple raised in Ireland about 1880, is still to be found in many old gardens. Its flavour and crispness, in my opinion, entitle it to serious consideration as a choice dessert variety for early October use. By mid-October Ellison's Orange begins to be eatable. Not everyone likes the faint flavour of aniseed in this apple: still it is a refreshing fruit and easily grown. Charles Ross and Herring's Pippin come in here, but, apart from their very handsome appearance, they have little to commend them. They are succeeded by Lord Lambourne, a pleasant apple, but not in the first class.

A most delicious apple ripens at the same time—towards the end of October—Orleans Reinette, highly praised by that great connoisseur of fruit, the late E. A. Bunyard. This apple closely resembles a small fruit of Blenheim Orange in appearance, but has a much richer flavour. The tree cankers in heavy soil, but grows and crops well where the soil is light. American Mother is fit for the table about this time. A very pretty apple, it has a delicate pear-like flavour, almost too subtle for some palates; to borrow a simile from wines, it is a fine claret rather than a full-bodied burgundy. The tree is healthy, although too shy a cropper to ever be a commercial variety; this, however, need not deter the amateur from growing it.

HEAVY CROPPER

Early in November the incomparable Cox's Orange Pippin matures, and keeps in good condition until the beginning of December. It has the reputation of being very difficult to grow, and certainly it is prone to canker where the soil is sour. In any fairly good apple soil, however, Cox can be made to succeed, provided it is adequately protected from the scab fungus by spraying it at the right time with weak lime sulphur (1 in 100). It appreciates a light dressing of well-decayed manure now and then, and the fruit finish better on a wall, although this is not essential.

Allington Pippin is hardly worthy to occupy a place in the same garden with some of the fruits I have mentioned. Its flavour is merely so-so, but it is a healthy prolific variety if well manured, and succeeds in almost any soil; hence it is recommended for commercial planting.

Egremont Russet, ripening early in November, is the best of the Russet varieties of its season, and should be grown by those who like the crisp, dry texture of this group. It is a heavy cropper. That fine old apple Blenheim Orange, huge trees of which may be seen in the Blackwater valley, furnishes good November dessert and also cooks excellently; it is prone to canker in certain soils. Ribston Pippin is quite in the Cox class, and is one of the best-flavoured apples we have. It is even more difficult to grow than Cox, on account of its liability to canker, and susceptibility to attack by woolly aphis.

The best apple for the Christmas season is Laxton's Superb, the most valuable of the newer apples, with quite a lot of Cox character, but without its delicate constitution.

Military Service Pension Claims

Nine more conditional orders of certiorari in military service pensions claims were granted by Mr. Justice Haugh, in the High Court, Dublin, yesterday. The conditional orders were to quash the reports of the Referee appointed under the Military Service Pensions Act, 1934, refusing applications for military service pensions.

The applicants to whom the conditional orders were granted were:—Patrick McTigue, Bishop street, Tuam; Patrick Crowe, Brierfield, Menlough, Ballinasloe; Michael Burke, Old road, Abbey, Ballyglunin; John Connor, Ower Bridge, Headford; Patrick Neill, Grague, Loughrea; John Burke, Cahermore, Ardrahan; Martin McEvoy, Roo, Craughwell, all County Galway; John Dooher, formerly of Ross, Killala, and now residing at Carrowcrin, Ardagh, Ballina, County Mayo; and Seamus O Ceallaigh, Dysert, Dunleer, County Louth.

Injured in Motor Car

A settlement for £301, and a sum for costs, was announced before Mr. Justice Haugh, in the High Court, Dublin, yesterday, in an action in which John W. K. Hollinger, farmer and cattle dealer, of Caddiagh, Ballybay, County Monaghan, claimed damages against William Hughes, Dublin street, Monghan, for injuries suffered when a hackney motor car of Mr. Hughes in which he was travelling went into a ditch at Tonniscoffey, on the Monaghan to Ballybay road, on August 25, 1942, causing his head to strike the roof.

Illegal Operation Case

The hearing was resumed yesterday, in the Circuit Criminal Court, of the case in which two Dublin women are charged with conspiracy to perform an illegal operation on a County Cork girl. The women are Mrs. Mary McColgan, Lower Rathmines road, and Mrs. Annie Robinson, High road, Kilmainham. Mrs. Robinson is also charged with aiding and abetting in the performance of an illegal operation on the girl. Mrs. Mary Moloney, High road, Kilmainham, and Christopher Williams have pleaded guilty to conspiracy. Moloney has pleaded guilty, and Williams not guilty, to using an instrument to procure the miscarriage of the girl.

Mrs. McColgan denied all knowledge of any operation having been performed on the girl while staying in her hotel last May. Her first intimation of such an operation having been performed was when a Garda Inspector called at the hotel some time after the girl had left.

The hearing was adjourned by Judge Davitt until Monday next.

Volunteer Medical Service

In addition to the doctors commissioned in the Second Line Volunteer Reserve of the Army Medical Service last April, the following have been appointed to temporary commissioned rank, with effect as from the 19th October, 1943:—

As Captains—Dr. Joseph McHale, Galway; Dr. Thomas James Gilmartin, Dublin; Dr. Maurice Francis Murnaghan, Dublin; Dr. James Laffey, Co. Mayo.

As Lieutenants—Dr. John Whelan, Co. Kerry; Dr. William Dundon Hamilton, Cork; Dr. John Dwyer, Co. Cork; Dr. Patrick Kelly, Co. Kerry; Dr. John Vincent Carroll, Co. Cork; Dr. Cecil Edward Molony, Limerick; Dr. Michael Joseph Horgan, Co. Kerry; Dr. Patrick McInerney, Co. Clare; Dr. Francis Patrick McInerney, Co. Cavan; Dr. James Henry Foley, Cork; Dr. John Francis Harrington, Dublin; Dr. Shaun Diarmuid Daly, Dublin; Dr. William Bernard Darcy, Dublin; Mr. Bernard Corr, B.D.S., Cavan.

As 2nd Lieutenants—Prof. Jeremiah Murphy, Galway; Mr. John Joseph Kelly, Co. Cork.

They will be called on military service only in the event of a major emergency, and will then provide staffs for mobile surgical teams, emergency hospitals, and motor ambulance convoys.

SALE TUESDAY NEXT, AT 2 P.M.,

NOURSDALE, MILLTOWN.

RESIDENCE AND ABOUT 3 ACRES

(BY INSTRUCTIONS OF GEORGE W. SHANNON, ESQ.).

A RESIDENCE, so happily conceived and designed as to harmonise with and perhaps enhance, the unusual natural charm of its surroundings. Exquisite views of the Dublin hills, ample but easily kept pleasure grounds, and serene quiet, combine with close proximity to Milltown Railway Station and main tram and 'bus routes, and a not unreasonable walking distance from the city itself.

The Garage is large enough to accommodate 2 cars. There is a picturesque Gate Lodge, containing sittingroom, two bedrooms and kitchen, and the approach to the residence is by a hedge-bound, tree-shaded avenue.

The Grounds include large garden with tomato house and greenhouse, lawn tennis court and pleasure grounds. Exclusive of the grounds already mentioned there is a plot which has been let at £9 a year, the benefit of which a purchaser will receive. The Aga cooker and some minor items will not be included in the Sale.

Noursdale is held for 200 years from 1st May, 1869, subject to the annual rent of £43 18s. 4d. P.L.V., £67 10s. 0d. Seen by appointment.

The Land is of exceptional quality having been highly cultivated and very heavily manured for a number of years and is in peak condition at present. It is well known for very early and remunerative crops. Seasonal bearing crops include about 1½ acres asparagus and ½ acre seakale. In the garden there are strawberries, Alpine strawberries, apple and pear trees, rhubarb, etc. Growing crops also include Brussels sprouts, cabbage, sprouting broccoli, onions, Swede turnips and mangolds for seed. There are also about 7 acres of winter wheat already sown.

Special attention is drawn to the two glasshouses and out-door frames, all heated by very modern methods. The glasshouses contain about 1,000 carnation plants of the highest quality, probably the best collection in this country. They produce blooms the whole year round and are eagerly sought after, and realise the highest prices on the Dublin Market. It took the late owner many years, regardless of expense, to build up the present remarkably high standard.

The Out-offices include a heated and insulated mushroom house, rhubarb forcing shed, 6-eye hay shed, motor house, water house, 4 box stalls with loft, root house, workshop, packing house, clay sterilising plant, water tanks, 2 implement sheds, piggery, barn, etc. There is electric light in most of the out-offices and glasshouses.

The Property is ideally situated on the Malahide-Portmarnock coast road, and in an excellent position for a building scheme. It is adjacent to the Town of Malahide, and convenient to the D.U.T. Co. 'Bus Terminus and the G.N.R. Station.

£1,850 YEARLY (approx.) out of MODERN BLOCK OF FLATS, known as 25 UPPER PEMBROKE ST., DUBLIN.

THE MOST MODERN BLOCK OF RESIDENTIAL FLATS IN IRELAND, COMPARABLE WITH THE BEST OF SIMILAR FLATS IN LONDON, NEW YORK AND CONTINENTAL CENTRES. BUILT IN RECENT YEARS (1941), REGARDLESS OF EXPENSE, THE 20 SELF-CONTAINED FLATS INCORPORATED IN THE BUILDING (five-storey) EMBODY ALL THE ADVANTAGES WHICH ADVANCED MODERN AND SCIENTIFIC THOUGHT CAN CONTRIVE, INCLUDING CENTRAL HEATING THROUGHOUT (Neo-Classic Radiators), AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC LIFT IN CENTRAL HALL, PROVIDING EASY ACCESS TO EACH FLAT AND HAND-SERVICE LIFT FOR DELIVERY OF PARCELS, ETC.; HOUSE TELEPHONE SERVICE INSTALLED; BUILT-IN WARDROBES; LAUNDRY INSTALLED IN BASEMENT FOR TENANTS' USE; ALSO LARGE STORE ROOMS FOR TRUNKS, BICYCLES, ETC.

The floors of livingrooms, bedrooms and private halls are of ⅞" strip oak, and of kitchens, bathrooms pitch pine, and there are two exits from each Flat. Air-raid shelter in the basement. The walls and ceilings of the bathrooms and kitchens are finished in oil colours and the other rooms in oil-bound colour. Range hoods, for the elimination of cooking odours, have been fitted in the kitchens, which are also fitted with cupboards and larders. Three garages at rear. Held separately.

In view of the convenient position and general character, the Flats are always in ready demand, and an assured and steady income can always be counted upon. Financial accommodation is available to approved parties.

THE AUCTIONEERS, AFTER PERSONAL INSPECTION, CAN CONFIDENTLY RECOMMEND THE PROPERTY AS THE MOST DESIRABLE INVESTMENT WHICH HAS COME ON THE MARKET FOR SOME YEARS.

Held direct from Lord Pembroke under Lease newly granted, for 150 years at £40 per an. P.L.V., £419 (2/3rds. remission rates until April, 1947).

P. J. CORBETT, DECEASED. EXECUTRIX SALE.

FRIDAY, 12th NOVEMBER, at Two o'clock, AT 10 LOWER ORMOND QUAY,

'A VALUABLE LICENSED PROPERTY

ON IMPORTANT MAIN THOROUGHFARE,

42/44 LOWER DRUMCONDRA ROAD,

WITH EXCELLENT RESIDENCE.

The Premises have a frontage of about 44 feet, and comprise: Spacious bar, splendidly appointed, in carved mahogany and pine, embellished with numerous mirror reflectors. Adjoining the bar, and communicating therewith, is a comfortable lounge, to which there is a separate entrance; at the rear there is yard with stores for bottling and draught beer, and other storage accommodation as well as garage. Combined with the business amenities is a desirable Residence, which is approached through private hallway, and consists of well-proportioned drawingroom and diningroom, study, breakfast room, six bedrooms, kitchen and bathroom.

The location of this attractive investment, in the centre of a vast residential neighbourhood, is in itself an assurance of a high-class and extensive normal trading, which is substantially supplemented by the patronage derivable from the enormous attendance at the many sporting fixtures at Croke Park and Tolka Park, both of which are in proximity to the premises.

Held under Lease for 178 years from 1892, subject to £80 yearly. P.L.V., £113.

It is rarely that a licensed property, vested with so many advantages, is offered for public competition.

The Premises may be inspected daily from 3 to 7 p.m., on production of Order from Auctioneers, from whom trading particulars may be obtained.
